of all physical and digital collections along with subscription-based electronic resources In its inaugural year, over 1,750,000 searches have been performed in Primo Search The Research Library staff hosted meetings and provided mentoring, training, workshops, participated in symposiums, panel discussions, and lectures and classes for non-profit cultural and professional organizations, colleges, universities and other institutions Research Databases Since April 1, 2011, the Getty has provided access to the Bibliography of the History of Art (BHA) and to the Répertoire de la littérature de l'art (RILA) for no charge on its Web site at http://library.getty.edu/bha The databases, searchable together, cover material published between 1975 and 2007, and average approximately 1,000 online searches per day The Getty Research Portal has tripled the number of contributing institutions, and now offers global access to more than 40,000 digitized art history texts in the public domain In the past year, the Portal was used by 27,942 users who performed 159,825 searches The Project for the Study of Collecting and Provenance (PSCP), which includes the Getty Provenance Index, started two new database projects "British Sales 1680-1780" which is a collaboration with the National Gallery, London, and the "Knoedler Stock Books" which is supported by a grant of the Samuel H Kress Foundation Both databases will be accessible online free of charge once completed The Provenance Index Databases-with transcriptions of archival inventories, sale catalogs, dealer stock books, and other relevant documents-offer a rich resource for scholars around the world interested in the study of collecting and provenance The Getty Vocabulary Program provided online resources, education and outreach activities, mentoring and training, including Webinars, telephone and e-mail consultations, workshops, presentations at conferences, and on-site meetings and demonstrations, to Web users as well as staff from numerous non-profit cultural organizations during fiscal year 2014 The four Getty vocabulary databases (Art & Architecture Thesaurus, Union List of Artist Names, Getty Thesaurus of Geographic Names, and Cultural Objects Name Authority) continued to be available on the World Wide Web free of charge Average usage (page views) for all three of these searchable vocabularies for 2014 was approximately 210,000 searches per month, with users from all fifty United States and many foreign countries, the preponderance of usage of the Getty vocabularies on the Web is from ".edu" and ".org" institutions The publications of the Vocabulary Program, including a revised edition of the Introduction to Controlled Vocabularies, as well as Categories for the Description of Works of Art, editorial manuals, training modules, cataloguing examples, and sample data for downloading and testing, continued to be available free of charge on the GRI's Web site A new method of releasing the data free of charge as Linked Open Data was put into effect for AAT, and is in planning for TGN, ULAN, and CONA These resources are accessed by library, museum, archival professionals, students, and other users in the U.S. and internationally Digital Collections The Getty's Open Content Program launched in October, 2013, and the Research Institute has contributed 82,565 high-resolution images and metadata records and that can be freely downloaded and used The Research Institute significantly increased its production of digitization of books, photographs, works on paper, and other special collection material The images, totaling over 220,000 individual images from the special collections and 5,800,000 pages from the library's book collections, are available to the public free-of-charge over the Internet via the Getty's website as well as other digital repositories such as the Internet Archive (http://archive.org) and the ARTstor Digital Library (http://www.artstor.org) Users worldwide have downloaded GRI's digitized books more than 7,300,000 times Residential Scholars Program and Grants During the 2013/2014 scholar year, the theme at the Getty Research Institute and Getty Villa Scholars Program was Connecting Seas Getty Scholars and Getty Fellows began their residencies in September Throughout the course of the scholar year Visiting Scholars arrived and worked at the Research Institute and Villa for periods of three to six months Participants pursued their individual projects, conversed in the weekly scholar presentation, attended lectures and other events, took Part IX-A Line 3	Summary of Direct Charitable Activities	Line 3 - The Getty Conservation Institute The Getty Conservation Institute (GCI) serves the conservation community through scientific research, education and training, model field projects, and the dissemination of the results of both its own work and the work of others in the field. The GCI focuses on the creation and delivery of knowledge that will benefit the professionals and organizations responsible for the conservation of the world's cultural heritage. Examples of the GCI's activities in North and Central America, Africa, Europe, and the Middle East are included below. In July 2013 the GCI organized a workshop titled "Conservation Strategies for Humidity and Water-Damaged Photographic Materials." Held at the Croatian State Archives in Zagreb, this was the first of the Advanced-Level Photograph Conservation Workshops focusing on specific types of damage or deterioration, exploring the nature and mechanisms of the damage as well as appropriate treatments. In September 2013, the GCI hosted an experts meeting Integrating Imaging and Analytical Technologies for Conservation Practice at the Getty Center. Experts from art history, conservation, conservation science, imaging, computer science, data integration, and data visualization met to discuss how disparate types of data collected in the study of works of art might be integrated to facilitate the extraction and sharing of new information. The Conservation Institute, in collaboration with The Royal Oak Foundation, hosted a free program, "Westminster Abbey For Ever New" at the Getty Center on September 22, 2013. The event featured The Very Reverend Dr. John R. Hall, Dean of Westminster for an evening exploring the architecture, events, and people that are part of the history of Westminster Abbey. On October 24, 2013, the Conservation Institute hosted a free program "The Villa Savoye: A Manifesto for Modernity." This event was free to the public and focused on the Join Pierre-Antoine Gatier, architecte en chef de Monuments Historiques, France, for an examination of the conservation management plan for the Le Corbusier-designed Villa Savoye. In December 2013 the GCI and World Monuments Fund released Arches version 1.0, a user-friendly, open source information management software system built specifically to help heritage organizations safeguard cultural heritage sites worldwide. On December 10, 2013 the GCI hosted a lecture and panel discussion "Everyday Modernism in the California Landscape", at the Getty Center. This evening of lectures and a panel discussion was free to the public and focused on conservation strategies for well-known icons of California Modernism, including works by Richard Neutra, Gregory Ain, Lawrence Halprin, Garret Eckbo and Moore, and Lyndon, Turnbull, Whitaker Partnership, each of whom directed their designs through the integration of landscape and setting. The GCI held the Cleaning of Acrylic Painted Surfaces (CAPS) workshop at the Art Gallery of New South Wales, Australia on December 10-13, 2013. The workshop engages conservators with current research into acrylic paints to explore the theory, design, and application of customized methodologies and materials for cleaning acrylic painted surfaces. Workshop participants put into practice new research on cleaning systems and methodologies for acrylic painted surfaces. On January 15, 2014 the Conservation Institute hosted a free program, "Helen Pashgian: Transcending the Material" where Helen Pashgian and Los Angeles County Museum of Art curator, Carol Elie, discussed Pashgian's artwork, materials, and processes, as well as thoughts on conservation. In collaboration with the Arab Image Foundation, the University of Delaware, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the GCI's Middle East Photograph Preservation Initiative launched its third and final course on the preservation of photograph collections in January 2014. The 8-day workshop at the National Library of Jordan in Amman was open to individuals who care for photographic collections in museums, libraries, archives, or similar institutions. On January 15, 2014 the Conservation Institute hosted "Icons in Plastic." This event was free to the public and focused on issues related to the conservation of design objects made with plastic materials during the mid-20th century by artists and designers who were choosing plastic to create their now iconic design objects. In March 2014, the GCI convened the two-day "Colloquium to Advance the Practice of Conserving Modern Architecture", bringing together professionals and organizations to identify ways that the practice of conserving modern heritage might progress. The colloquium was organized around the themes of philosophy and approach, physical conservation challenges, education and training, and identification, assessment, and interpretation. In April of 2014, the GCI's MOSAIKON initiative hosted a training course in the conservation and management of archaeological sites with mosaics, to take place in Paphos, Cyprus from April 28 to May 16. The course was opened to mid-career professionals from the southern and eastern Mediterranean region who work on or have responsibility for archaeological sites with mosaics. On May 3, 2014, the Conservation Institute hosted "Exploring Pollock" at the Getty Center. This event was free to the public and included a screening of the film Pollock, followed by a conversation with award-winning actor and filmmaker Ed Harris, the film's composer Jeff Beal, and art historian and Pollock expert Pepe Karmel. As part of our long-standing collaboration with UCLA, the Getty Conservation Institute co-hosted the International Symposium on Archaeometry (ISA) symposium on May 19 - 23, 2014 at the Getty Villa. The symposium was an opportunity to draw on examples and best practices from interdisciplinary research at the interface between the natural sciences, engineering and archaeology to reconstruct and understand human behavior through the study of material culture. This four-day event hosted over 450 individuals from a variety of fields including archaeological scientists, archaeologists, museum professionals, conservation scientists, policy-makers, natural scientists, and engineers to discuss new findings and innovations in technology and scientific research and to address current and global challenges in archaeology and cultural property. The Getty Conservation Institute's Science department lead 23 tours of our facilities to conservation professionals or groups, local colleges and universities (including the Claremont College, UC Irvine, University of Iowa, Fullerton College, USC's Architecture and Historic Preservation Programs, Santa Monica College, Pomona College, University of Arizona, University of Kabul and Pasadena City College), local high school groups, and other professional organizations, including the ICOM-CC Directory Board, the National Palace Museum of Korea and colleagues from the Museu de Arqueologia e Etnologia at the University Sao Paulo Brazil. The GCI hosted seven conservation guest scholars who conducted their own research on topics ranging from examining the history and potential downside of preventive conservation in the exhibition of works of art to the development of a technical database on French bronze sculpture from the 16th - 18th centuries. The GCI hosted a postdoctoral fellow in the Science department working with the GCI's Collections Research group to investigate questions of authenticity, attribution, and artists' techniques, assist in the development and evaluation of conservation treatment programs, and contribute to the understanding of the physical properties and behavior of the materials comprising works of art. The Conservation Institute made available two sets of didactic resources that have been produced and used in the Institute's courses, workshops, and field training including teaching schedules, session outlines, bibliographies, technical notes, and videos relating to both the Conserving Modern Materials: Cleaning of Acrylic Painted Surfaces and Characterizing Materials. Recent Advances in Characterizing Asian Lacquers projects. Two issues of Conservation Perspectives, The GCI Newsletter were distributed free of charge around the world to over 8,000 international professionals in conservation and related fields and members of the public concerned about conservation. The GCI YouTube channel made available videos on a variety of GCI activities including GCI projects, lectures, symposia and conferences for conservation professionals around the world. During the 2014 fiscal year, GCI videos have received over 60,000 views from around the world. The GCI Bulletin, a free bimonthly e-bulletin providing up-to-date information on the activities of the Getty Conservation Institute, was distributed free of charge to professional colleagues around the world. The GCI's comprehensive database of abstracts and key resource for the conservation field, AATA Online added over 3,800 new records including abstracts and new or updated GCI Project Bibliographies, related to preservation and conservation of materials cultural heritage. During the 2014 fiscal year, AATA Online had nearly 50,000 users visit the site. In addition to hundreds of online resources, additional GCI publications were made available free of charge on the Getty Web site during this time period including Effects of Light on Materials in Collections: Data on Photoflash and Related Sources, Evaluation of Lime-Based Hydraulic Injection Grouts for the Conservation of Architectural Surfaces- A Manual of Laboratory and Field Test Methods, Lessons Learned: Reflecting on the Theory and Practice of Mosaic Conservation, The Siqueiros Legacy: Challenges of Conserving the Artist's Monumental Murals, Of the Past, for the Future: Integrating Archaeology and Conservation, Conserving Twentieth-Century Built Heritage: A Bibliography, The Conservation and Management of the Tomb of Tutankhamen (KV62): A Project Bibliography, and Twentieth-Century Building Materials: History and Conservation.
