Statement of Program Service Accomplishments

Check if Schedule O contains a response or note to any line in this Part III

1

Briefly describe the organization’s mission

Our mission is to conserve and study certain raptors, as well as prevent their extinction. Raptors are among the critical components of our natural world and cultural heritage, and they assist humans in understanding their interdependence with nature and the environment. Through our programs, we seek to advance the knowledge of avian biology, ecology, and conservation through research, training and education. As a result, we seek to improve global environmental health and to conserve biological diversity.

Species Restoration - The captive breeding facility in Boise, Idaho produces California Condors for release to the wild to establish self-sustaining populations of this rare species. By 1982, just 22 California Condors remained on Earth. Today there are 425 individual birds, more than half of them flying free in the wild. This year the 18 pairs held by The Peregrine Fund produced 19 fertile eggs. Sixteen hatched in Boise and the rest were sent to other facilities. One chick was raised from an egg transferred to Boise from California. Thirteen captive-bred condors were transferred to the Arizona Vermilion Cliffs site for release to the wild and that population now includes 73 individuals. Cooperative programs with state agencies and hunting groups were expanded to encourage the use of lead-free ammunition in condor country. "Ingestion of Lead from Spent Ammunition: Implications for Wildlife and Humans" published in 2009 as a book and searchable CD, is still being referenced. Each year we attempt to trap every condor to be tested and, if necessary, treated for lead poisoning or any other maladies discovered.

Conservation Programs - Since founding in 1970, about 105 raptor species in at least 66 countries have benefitted from field research and hands-on recovery efforts by the organization. This year The Peregrine Fund was involved in raptor research, graduate studies, and conservation projects in 18 countries on four continents. Training and support were provided to 22 students conducting graduate thesis research projects and doctoral and master's studies, all in their native countries, since beginning, 25 students have graduated with PhD degrees and 70 with MSc degrees. This year, two pairs of previously released young of the critically endangered Ridgway's Hawk bred successfully in the wild in the Dominican Republic in an experimental assisted dispersal project, and a record 29 young were released to help establish a new population. Five Orange-breasted Falcon chicks, hatched in captivity, were released into the wild in Belize, and surveys were conducted for nesting falcons in Belize and Guatemala. Captive-bred and wild-hatched Harpy Eagles were tracked and observed in the forests of Danen, Panama using radio telemetry, and public educational campaigns were conducted to reduce shooting of this threatened species. Seven graduate students were supported in Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia and Ecuador, and one graduated with his PhD degree. Four students conducted field studies for graduate or post-graduate degrees benefitting culture conservation in Kenya and understanding of Eleonora's Falcon migration. In Madagascar, work continued to set aside globally significant wetlands and forests, monitor rare and endangered raptor species, assist captive breeding of critically endangered species, support eight graduate students' studies, and work with local communities to develop new income sources while protecting traditional customs and practices. Financial and technical support was given to the Philippine Eagle Foundation for work including captive breeding and release of Philippine Eagles, public education, conservation of critical habitat, and telemetry studies on wild eagles. Annual breeding population surveys of critically endangered Gyps vultures were completed in India, Pakistan, and Nepal that revealed stabilizing populations after the catastrophic declines recorded due to the use of veterinary diclofenac in livestock. Key presentations were given to the Eighth Asian Raptor Research and Conservation Network conference in Pune, India, and several papers were given at the joint Neotropical Raptor Network (also a Peregrine Fund project) and Raptor Research Foundation conference in Argentina. The American Kestrel Partnership was expanded to understand the species' decline on a continental scale. The first meeting of the Tundra Conservation Network was convened, and the first season of study to understand how the Gyrfalcon responds to impacts of climate change was completed in Alaska. Studies on the effects of wind turbines on raptor mortality, and golden eagle distributions were also conducted. Aplomado Falcon surveys found 31 pairs in South Texas and a total of 45 young were produced.

Education / Information - The Education Program at The Peregrine Fund's World Center for Birds of Prey provides cultural and educational opportunities to the greater Treasure Valley, Idaho, and beyond. With a growing population, complicated land use patterns, and the need to increase the public's awareness of natural systems, we provide information for students and individuals to make wise decisions and have a positive impact on our environment. In FY2014 we hosted 30,000 visitors at our Interpretive Center. We also continued our school-endorsed programs which are geared to K-12 students in Idaho. These programs have been designed by educators and biologists to meet STEM standards and provide valuable scientific content for visiting students and teachers. In 2014 we reached 6,000 students through a combination of on-and-off site programming. Calendars, annual reports, news releases, brochures and other materials are updated annually and made available to the public. The Peregrine Fund's online audience logged about 750,000 page views of our webcams trained on Peregrine Falcons and American Kestrels that show them courting, nesting, and raising young each spring. Year-round, viewers access Explore Raptors, a user-friendly guide for all ages to identify and learn about raptor species. For users seeking more technical information, our Global Raptor Information Network presents academic species accounts and bibliographies of published works on 333 raptor species. Journal articles from The Peregrine Fund's library may be requested, this year staff supplied 492 articles to researchers worldwide free of charge. Visitors to the Archives of Falconry learn about the role of falconers in raptor conservation and habitat protection. The website provides tools to join, subscribe to e-newsletters, shop for raptor-related merchandise, and track donations. The organization has 27,836 followers on its 5 Facebook pages and 2,032 followers on Twitter.

| Schedule D, Part III, Line 4 | The Archives of Falconry functions within The Peregrine Fund's educational as well as its research programs included in the mission statement. The worldwide cultural heritage of falconry extends back over 4,000 years. It was that sport's history and interaction with raptors that led modern practitioners to found and establish The Peregrine Fund to restore endangered populations of birds of prey, starting with the Peregrine Falcon. Their successes in rescuing that and subsequent species have been due in large part to the intimate insight and personal understanding derived from their relationships with these birds through their practice of falconry. While such falconers' interactions and relationships have been documented for hundreds of years, this valuable history was being lost due to the absence of any focused effort to preserve records of falconers and their key roles in raptor conservation. For over a quarter of a century The Archives of Falconry, founded by The Peregrine Fund and unique in the world, has been devoted to the preservation of that historical record. |
| Schedule D, Part V, Line 4 | The Board of Directors established the endowment fund and the related payout policy that allows The Peregrine Fund to use a portion of the endowment balance each year towards operating expenses including both supporting services and program services as needed. The Board of Directors set up the William A. Burnham Memorial Fund as part of the endowment, which provides for grants to be paid based upon the recommendation of the memorial fund's committee members. A permanent endowment was created in 2013 as a result of a donation received that was restricted as to its use in perpetuity to support the Velma Morrison Interpretive Center. |

| Return Reference | Explanation |
|-----------------------------|---|
| Schedule J, Part I, Line 1a | Companion Travel - on occasion, travel expenses are paid for the President's spouse when it is for a bona fide business purpose. This occurs when an additional person is needed when traveling with a bird and an employee or other volunteer is not available, or when the spouse is participating in development activities and is an integral part of the meetings held, serving as a volunteer development staff member. Because these are bona fide business expenses, it is not a taxable benefit to the President. If neither of those cases applies, spousal travel is not paid for by The Peregrine Fund. Housing Allowance - the President receives a housing allowance that is included on the W-2 as taxable income as per the salary agreement negotiated and approved by the Board of Directors. |
| Schedule J, Part I, Line 1b | Companion Travel - there is no written agreement regarding reimbursement of spousal travel expenses. Spousal travel is only paid for when it is determined to be a bona fide business expense after discussion between the President, Accountant and Bookkeeper. Housing Allowance - is per a written agreement negotiated and approved by the Board of Directors. |
| Schedule J, Part I, Line 3 | Prior to the meeting of the Compensation Committee, the President provides the Chairperson of the committee with an evaluation of the officers under him and a summary of his own activities for the year. The President at that time recommends compensation for the vice president and makes recommendations for the committee to consider for himself. When the committee meets, the President is in attendance at the beginning of the meeting to answer questions and provide a verbal report of the activities and accomplishments of himself and the vice president during the previous year. He is then excused and the Compensation Committee meets to decide on compensation to propose to the entire Board for the officers. During the meeting of the full Board, at the conclusion of the regular business the Board goes into a closed session to consider the report of the Compensation Committee. A vote is taken and thus the salaries of officers are established for the upcoming year. The Chairperson of the Compensation Committee provides written minutes of the meeting for the files. When the President makes his recommendations he takes into consideration (1) job performance during the previous year, (2) professional qualifications, (3) experience, (4) cost of living increase/decrease, (5) compensation provided by comparable organizations, and (6) the overall budget for the upcoming year and whether increases in compensation are possible. Members of the Compensation Committee verify that compensation for officers of The Peregrine Fund is in line |

990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

| Return Reference | Explanation |
|--|--|
| Form 990, Part VI, Section A, Line 2 | Board members Paxon Offield and Calen Offield are father and son |
| Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 11b | The form 990 is prepared in-house by the Accountant. It is then reviewed by the President and Vice-President. The draft public disclosure version of the 990 is e-mailed or sent by US Postal Service to all board members who are given an opportunity to comment before the return is filed with the IRS. |
| Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 12c | Each director, principal officer, and member of a committee with governing board-designated powers annually signs a statement which affirms they have received a copy of the Conflict of Interest Policy, have read and understand the policy, have agreed to comply with the policy, and understand The Peregrine Fund is charitable and in order to maintain its federal tax exemption it must engage primarily in activities which accomplish one or more of its tax-exempt purposes. To ensure The Peregrine Fund operates in a manner consistent with charitable purposes and does not engage in activities that could jeopardize its tax-exempt status, periodic reviews are conducted. The reviews include whether compensation arrangements and benefits are reasonable based on competent survey information and the result of arm's length bargaining and whether partnerships, joint ventures, and arrangements with management organizations conform to the Organization's written policies, are properly recorded, reflect reasonable investment or payments for goods and services, further charitable purposes and do not result in inurement, impermissible private benefit, or in an excess benefit transaction. |
| Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 15 | Prior to the meeting of the Compensation Committee, the President provides the Chairperson of the committee with an evaluation of the officers under him and a summary of his own activities for the year. The President at that time recommends compensation for the vice president and makes recommendations for the committee to consider for himself. When the committee meets, the President is in attendance at the beginning of the meeting to answer questions and provide a verbal report of the activities and accomplishments of himself and the vice president during the previous year. He is then excused and the Compensation Committee meets to decide on compensation to propose to the entire Board for the officers. During the meeting of the full Board, at the conclusion of the regular business the Board goes into a closed session to consider the report of the Compensation Committee. A vote is taken and thus the salaries of officers are established for the upcoming year. The Chairperson of the Compensation Committee provides written minutes of the meeting for the files. When the President makes his recommendations he takes into consideration (1) job performance during the previous year, (2) professional qualifications, (3) experience, (4) cost of living increase/decrease, (5) compensation provided by comparable organizations, and (6) the overall budget for the upcoming year and whether increases in compensation are possible. Members of the Compensation Committee verify that compensation for officers of The Peregrine Fund is in line. Occasionally one of the Directors has his staff research comparable compensation information. |
