	PART III, LINE 4A	CONTINUED FROM FORM 990, PART III, LINE 4A Founded in 1867 as the George Peabody Education Fund, the Southern Education Foundation's mission is to advance equity and excellence in education for all students in the South, particularly low income students and students of color SEF uses collaboration, advocacy, and research to improve outcomes from early child hood to adulthood Our core belief is that education is the vehicle by which all students get fair chances to develop their talents and contribute to the common good SEF strives t o fulfill its mission through the following core program areas promoting early learning o pportunities, advancing public education and improving college access and completion SEF executes five primary strategies across our programs 1 Leveraging knowledge of the field by establishing and operating task forces, work groups, and learning communities to orga nize know ledge and advance new solutions to long standing problems, 2 Putting good ideas to a fair test promoting, conducting, and using demonstrations, pilots, and evaluations t o shape policy and practice, 3 Mobilizing the public through direct engagement to educat e and organize, providing research, tools, and in some cases capital assistance to organiz ations for advancing public education through policy and practice reforms that improve lea rning opportunities for vulnerable children and youth, 4 Leadership development training the next generation of change agents focused on equity in education in the South through fellowships from undergraduate to mid-career, and 5 Communications as a change strategy conducting and commissioning research and messaging campaigns to support progressive publi c policy and practice reforms in education, from early learning through higher education A summary of our strategies, activities and accomplishments in 2014 follows for each progr am area Promoting Early Learning Opportunities Decades of studying the link between pove rty and education have confirmed for SEF, high quality early childhood programs may be the single best investment for getting young children, especially the new majority of low inc omes students in the South, to be school-ready and succeed Early education system leaders are under tremendous pressure to show they are making the most of public monies and putti ng funds toward high quality centers with proven strategies for increasing student outcome s A number of states have in response implemented higher credentialing standards for their workforce, instituted systems for evaluating and ranking center quality in both public a nd for-profit spaces, and developed systems for creating state curriculum standards In so me states this takes the form of voluntary and/or mandated center participation in Quality Rated Improvements Systems to receive public funds And in even more advanced states, kin dergarten entry assessments have been instituted to better inform these accountability eff orts as well as make adjustments to K-12 curriculum Our Strategy 1 Providing research, technical assistance and tools uncovering early education trends, impact, and best practi ces in financing and aligning early education systems (birth-to-eight) stakeholders can us e for informing policymaking decisions, 2 Creating opportunity for cross-state collaborat ion sharing information related to strategies for equitably raising the quality of early learning systems without low ering access, 3 Building community awareness and support bri nging new partners to the table and ensuring current stakeholders and allies are working more strategically together Goal Increase access to high-quality early learning opportuni ties for all students In 2014, SEF continued to monitor the challenges facing early educa tion system leaders, to include tracking policy developments across the South We were esp ecially concerned with the issues faced by six Deep Southern states (AL, AR, GA, LA, MS, S C) for which a variety of indicators suggest that disparities in needs and opportunities a re the greatest In addition, SEF made a special effort to improve the Southern states pre sence in the national discourse on early learning issues and connected Southern leadership with national advocacy organizations leading these efforts 2014 Activities and Outcomes 1 Engaged with early childhood leadership across the Deep South to better understand cha llenges for expanding early education access, workforce development needs, and opportuniti es for improving teacher preparation and partnerships betwe en institutions of higher educa tion and low income workforce in child care sector, 2 Joined a variety of learning commun ities focused on improving early childhood outcomes like the Georgia Department of Early C are and Learning Statewide Family Engagement Task Force, and Georgia Birth to Five Coaliti on 3 Concept papers were developed with national partners around new ways of engaging bu siness leadership to improve early education acces

	PART III, LINE 4A	s and advocacy efforts Advancing Public Education Public education for all children has long been a cornerstone of democracy in the United States, and the American South has been the center of the battle to achieve this goal Today, we see disinvestment in our public schools and increasing efforts to divert funds to private and charter schools as a hindran ce from achieving equity in education for all, and we work to push back on these efforts a nd advance well-funded, safe, supportive, and diverse public schools that are held to mean ingful and fair standards Our Strategy 1 Informing and supporting public education camp aigns across the South, to help engage, connect, and align diverse coalitions within and a cross states to employ multi-strategy approaches to advance public education, 2 Regionali zing efforts through policy research and communications efforts, to help marshal evidence about what works in the region and strengthen the public education narrative, and 3 Advan cing new designs for teaching and learning, so as to create environments where defensive b attles can become offensive ones that shift from simply protecting public education to re- envisioning public education systems that support all children Goal Improve understandin g of and constituency for high-quality public schools in the South In 2014, SEF worked cl osely throughout the year with key national stakeholders interested in education justice i n the American South (including the National Education Association, the Center for Popular Democracy, Advancement Project, the Alliance for Education Justice, and the American Fede ration of Teachers), together with folks who have a history of advocacy and organizing wor k in the region (including from Pow er U Center for Social Change, MS NAACP, Z Smith Reyno lds Foundation, Southern Initiative Algebra Project, and the Arkansas Public Policy Panel among others) to discuss the potential for a coordinated, proactive, long-term strategy in the region A convening was held late in the year that surfaced a number of distinguishin g features about organizing and advocacy work in the South the importance of building int erracial and intergenerational coalitions, the power of the clergy and faith-based organiz ations relative to unions and professional organizations, the fact that in the South, demo graphics are rapidly shifting to younger, more racially diverse populations, and that ther e is significant contextual variation within the region -- rural, urban, Appalachia, the G ulf, the Black Belt, and the Deep South Our colleagues agreed on the need for a "Southern strategy" - one that takes into account the unique nature of advocacy and organizing work in the region, given both historical and current contexts It was clearly revealed that o ur partners 'on the ground' face similar challenges in their efforts to push for equity an d quality education in their communities They agreed there was a needed mechanism to shar e data, confer on ideas and strategies and build a broad consensus on the kind of educatio n system needed across the South We focused in 2014 on beginning the processes that could give rise to this forum A second arena of activity for the program area was focused on e ngaging organizations around out-of-school suspension and juvenile justice SEF has long t hought raising aw areness about the importance of push-out policies and juvenile justice tr ends in the region is critical to closing the achievement gap for low income and minority students across the South SEF tracked discipline data, as well as distributed resources t o partners that could be useful for working on a local and state level to address issues with the school to prison pipeline One of the major reports developed as part of this effo rt was, Just Learning The imperative to Transform the Juvenile Justice System, released i n the 2014 year The report provided pow erful evidence that young people placed in the juv enile justice systems across the nation,
