ICC mentors Christian leaders. The organization's core values of competence, character, and community drive mission advancement through conferences and chapters. Training events range in length from one day to one week. Chapters advance the ICC mission in their local area, equipping students from 6 to 18 years of age and their parents in leadership and communication competencies while grounding them in Biblical character, through activities to promote competencies including leadership development, inter-cultural communication, service, coaching skills, public speaking, critical thinking and debate, creativity, and cultural awareness. Chapter members seek out community platforms including schools, libraries, businesses, retirement homes, hospitals, charities, churches, and other civic-minded organizations to share messages of hope, encouragement, and Christian charity.
