Dengue prevention efforts have usually focused on vector control but the development of dengue vaccines has accelerated dramatically in recent years. There are several vaccines in various stages of advanced development, with clinical trials currently underway. The frontrunner is Sanofi Pasteur's live attenuated chimeric tetravalent vaccine that has been in Phase 3 trials. DVI has been paving the way for introduction of the dengue vaccine through policy and access, regulatory, and advocacy activities. IVI for its part has been generating evidence on the disease and economic burden of dengue through field studies in Thailand, Vietnam, and Colombia. In 2014, IVI continued surveillance, serological surveys, and cost-of-illness survey in these countries. In addition, we initiated studies in Burkina Faso, and made preparations for the launch of new field sites in Gabon, Kenya and Cambodia in 2015. Two Dengue Prevention Board Meetings were convened in 2014 - one in Mexico City for the Latin Americas region in March, and one in Seoul for the Asia-Pacific region in November. The Americas meeting discussed the basis for the collaborative and integrated approaches to dengue prevention and control, while the Asia-Pacific meeting focused on a review of the vaccine development status and points for consideration for vaccine introduction. Several major regulatory meetings were held in 2014 as well. In 2013, DVI formed a group of regulators from seven countries with interest in the early adoption of dengue vaccines. The DVI regulatory group met twice in 2014. At a meeting in Beijing, the national regulatory authorities (NRAs) of five countries signed an agreement to cooperate on the joint evaluation of files or protocols of novel dengue vaccines. The group also met again in Jakarta, Indonesia with NRA representatives from Brazil, Colombia, Indonesia, Malaysia, Mexico, Philippines, and Thailand. They reviewed and agreed on more specific details of joint evaluations of clinical trial applications and of registration dossiers.

IVI recognized that having more than one manufacturer of the oral cholera vaccine for the global market would ensure a reliable supply at an affordable price. EuBiologics, a Korean company, was selected as a second manufacturing partner and in 2010 IVI transferred the technology for production and quality control of inactivated oral cholera vaccine to them. IVI has worked with Eubiologics to perform the necessary trials for licensure in Korea and to obtain subsequent WHO prequalification. As part of the global access agreement between the two parties Eubiologics will provide high quality affordable vaccine for public sector use in resource poor countries. Substantial progress was made in 2014 on the EuBiologics vaccine, Evuichol. The vaccine is poised to receive export licensure from the Korean Ministry of Food and Drug Safety in 2015, paving the way for its subsequent application to WHO for prequalification. Once WHO prequalification is achieved the vaccine can be sold through UNICEF to the global market highlighting the major contribution of Eubiologics and the Republic of Korea to the fight against the burden of cholera. In 2014, IVI began working with a new partner, Incepta Vaccine Ltd, a Bangladeshi company, for the technology transfer and clinical development of the oral cholera vaccine. Since cholera is endemic in Bangladesh, there is great need for a domestically produced oral cholera vaccine. The partnership with Incepta will help reduce the burden of cholera in Bangladesh. A global oral cholera vaccine stockpile was established in late 2013 financed by Gavi, the Vaccine Alliance and managed by WHO and other partners. The purpose of the stockpile is to expedite the delivery of cholera vaccines for rapid outbreak response in emergencies and crisis situations. The stockpile was used for the first time in 2014 to combat a cholera outbreak in South Sudan. While perceptions have been changing about using a vaccine to fight cholera, more evidence is needed to demonstrate the impact of vaccination and to generate demand for the oral cholera vaccine. IVI has been collaborating with local health authorities and partners on the introduction of the oral cholera vaccine in Malawi, Ethiopia, India and Bangladesh to provide practical evidence that cholera vaccination works, is feasible, and is well-accepted by the community. In 2014, IVI continued to provide technical support to icddr,b for the introduction of the vaccine in Bangladesh. In addition, we have been preparing for pilot vaccination campaigns in Ethiopia and Malawi slated for launch in early 2015. Those projects are supported by LG Electronics and Kia Motors respectively. In late 2014, Shanchol was approved for use in the pilot campaign by the Ethiopian national regulatory authority after a clinical trial showed that it was safe and immunogenic in the Ethiopian population. Despite the progress made, we are still not finished. IVI continues to work on cholera control, increasing vaccine supply and advocating for the use of the vaccine - so that all communities at risk are protected against cholera.

The research focused on the entire vaccine continuum, ranging from the discovery of vaccine targets/antigens to development and deployment of new vaccines and developing new and improved vaccines more effective than existing vaccines and accelerating the deployment of these vaccines in developing countries. Also, IVI supported vaccine manufacturing in Korea through cooperation with research institutes, vaccine companies and universities in Korea and contributed to professional manpower training in vaccine area.
