Access to Care. Access to Care (A2C) is a five-year initiative funded under the US federal government's Social Innovation Fund (SIF) to identify, document, and evaluate innovative approaches to improving outcomes along the HIV care continuum. This public-private partnership provides $2.2 million per year in federal funding, matched dollar for dollar at the national level and again at local sites. The funding supports 12 community-driven, collaborative programs to improve individual health outcomes and strengthen services systems, connecting thousands of low-income and marginalized individuals living with HIV to quality supportive services and health care. More than 14 private sector funders have contributed matching funds. Profiles of grantees and their respective programs can be found at <http://www.aidsunited.org/Programs-0024-Grantmaking/Access-to-Care.aspx>.

AU manages the groundbreaking national evaluation, led by Drs. David Holtgrave and Cathy Mausby of Johns Hopkins University, which is beginning to reveal cross-cutting findings for the field, and is demonstrating early signs of success. Thousands of people living with HIV/AIDS have been enrolled to date into the A2C Initiative, from the populations most impacted by the epidemic. In our grantee communities, CD4 counts are increasing and viral loads are decreasing. Clients served by these programs are working toward self-sufficiency through treatment adherence, job training, housing stabilization, and peer to peer support.

Southern REACH (Regional Expansion of Access and Capacity to address HIV/AIDS). The U.S. South remains one of the most disproportionately affected regions in the United States. In an effort to respond to alarming impact of the epidemic in the South, AIDS United (AU), in partnership with the Ford Foundation, created the Southern REACH initiative in 2006. In the 2013-2014 grant period, AU awarded 32 grants to organizations located in nine Southern states: Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and (Northern) Florida. These grantees made significant changes in educating decision makers and mobilizing grassroots activists to end HIV/AIDS in the South. The organizations worked with the most vulnerable populations of persons living with or at-risk of HIV/AIDS to raise the level of awareness of policies and laws that make accessing care and prevention programs a challenge in the South, especially those addressing issues related to access to justice/law reform. As a result of its investments in Southern REACH grantees, approximately 50,000 people were impacted through 1,000+ advocacy/educational activities. There were over 75 community partners outside of the REACH cohort that were engaged and dozens of policy improvements benefited from education and awareness raising by REACH grantees. To learn more about this initiative, visit <http://southernreach.aidsunited.org/>.

4c (Code:) (Expenses $ 1,177,040 including grants of $ 1,000,000) (Revenue $ 0)

Retention in Care. The Retention in Care (RIC) initiative is a three-year, multi-million dollar partnership with the MAC AIDS Fund aimed at improving long-term retention in care for individuals living with HIV in the United States. AIDS United supports seven innovative programs working with the most disproportionately impacted populations across the country to address one of the largest drop-off points along the HIV care continuum. Local evaluators are working hand-in-hand with a national evaluation team at Johns Hopkins University to document the ability of these programs to improve individual and community-level health outcomes, affect systems change and measure cost effectiveness. Detailed profiles of grantees and their programs can be viewed at <http://aidsunited.org/Programs-0024-Grantmaking/Retention-in-Care.aspx>.

AIDS United ensures the proper use of all grant funds awarded to other organizations. Monitoring procedures include the following: [1] Requiring a narrative application and budget from each grantee detailing the proposed use of grant funds, which serves as the basis for grant awards; [2] Issuing a detailed grant award contract letter outlining the terms and conditions of every grant, which is signed and returned prior to grant awards; and [3] Requiring narrative progress and financial reports from grantees at least annually, but often semi-annually. These reports are reviewed prior to making additional payments to grantees. Additionally, most grants involve considerable interactive contact between AIDS United and grantee organizations throughout the grant periods, including telephone conversations, e-mail communication, and site visits, which serve grant monitoring purposes as well as provide occasions for technical support.

(2) Positive Organizing Project (POP) Positive Organizing Project is designed to revitalize a grass-roots organizing movement among people living with HIV and AIDS (PLWHA) that impacts HIV-related stigma, raises education and awareness among policy makers, and indirectly improves outcomes along the continuum of care. The program supports local organizing efforts to address stigma and engagement in care.

This is being accomplished by (1) revitalizing the movement of HIV-positive mobilization in local communities, and (2) ensuring synergistic efforts that help us document models that are effective in achieving organizing goals, and can be shared and scaled elsewhere.
