Reasonable Cause Explanations

Explanation

The Center for Study of Responsive Law received an approval for the first 990 extension to August 15th, 2015. Our record should reflect that a second extension was filed in a timely fashion, but the preparer inadvertently mailed the second extension without a signature. We were not made aware of this error until September 21, 2015. We promptly worked to file our 2014 form 990. We believe this clerical error by the preparer should not penalize the organization. We have diligently filed all returns within required deadlines or by the extension approval dates. In the future, all filings, including extensions will be filed electronically, in order to avoid this from happening in the future. We take the responsibility of filing this informational return very seriously and we are embarrassed that this error happened. As it was not an intentional mistake, we hope the IRS will not assess a penalty due to our explanation of a reasonable cause.
