The Lost Children Foundation, Inc (LCF) received its exempt status February 2013, which was retroactive to October 2012. LCF is a service oriented organization with three initiatives. (1) Literacy Plus (LP) operates October through June, 2 hours daily after school, 3 times weekly providing reading and writing, math and homework support for kindergarten through eight grade. Over the past two years, LP has provided 350+ hours of service without charge. LCF's second initiative encourages post secondary continuing education for students from families that are low to moderate income. During the past year, $560 was awarded for a book scholarship for a first time college student in foster care, and $450 was awarded to a high school freshman to attend a four-day college tour. The third initiative that the Foundation embraces is health and wellness for people who are age 50+ to encourage healthy aging. Research shows that the best exercise for people with chronic conditions, or people 50+, is resistance training (strength training). To this end, LCF has contracted with a personal trainer who specializes in resistance training (RT). What we found as we began to work with the 50+ age group is that there is a lack of awareness and knowledge about the important role strength training plays in people age 50+. So, we began to hold health and wellness education workshops on resistance training. During the past two years, LCF held four workshops. Thirty plus people attended the workshops. In addition to providing health information, the workshops provide a demonstration of resistance training and research findings that demonstrate why RT is the magic pill for people age 50+. LCF offers the RT program free of charge to eligible clients who are approved by a physician, or, are chronically ill, and in need of an exercise treatment to improve their health and are willing to train twice a week. LCF works with people suffering from chronic ailments: obesity, diabetes, high blood pressure, osteoporosis, arthritis, and so forth. LCF is partnering with two residential facilities for low income seniors. RT training is provided to residents on site between the hours of 10am & 3pm. Training is also offered "in home" at the client's convenience and in a private studio. Training sessions are 40 to 50 minutes. As of 2015, the Personal Resistance Training Program is entering its second year and has served a maximum of 15 clients with over 500 hours of service (not including attendees at workshops) with six clients currently in training and two clients pending awaiting physician approval. The RT program has offered 8 hours of health and wellness education to 30+ participants and provided literature highlighting the benefits of RT for older adults.

The Lost Children Foundation's mission is to help two of the most vulnerable groups: children and seniors, including the elderly. Children with good reading and writing skills have a better chance at success in school, and a better opportunity to improve their quality of life and move themselves and their families out of poverty. Research shows that people are living longer, LCF works with seniors and the elderly to improve their quality of life as they age. Resistance training is the number one exercise for people as they age. All the programs LCF offers benefit children, teens, and older people. LCF is a small non-profit, that is just getting started. Our success will depend on expanding the reach for contributors, providing quality and timely service, establishing a good reputation so that we can be in a position to apply for grants to establish a continuing flow of revenue to fund LCF's three initiatives. LCF is off to a good start working with children and seniors. We know we are making a difference in the lives of the people the Foundation serves, and that's our goal-to better the lives of seniors and children.
