U.S. PROGRAMS. In 2009, ISC launched its Signature Sustainable Communities Leadership Academy, and over the past 7 years, this innovative peer-learning program has brought together more than 2,000 leaders from 500 communities in the U.S. to translate their commitment to creating sustainable communities and reducing climate pollution into effective action. ISC was a partner in Phase I of the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and Department of Transportation (DOT) funded Sustainable Communities Initiative, which was completed in September 2013. In Phase II, ISC led the National Sustainable Communities Learning Network (SCLN), a technical assistance partnership designed to build capacity in 300 HUD-grantee communities and regions. ISC led a capacity-building team of 12 national organizations to help American cities implement action plans for sustainable development and economic growth. SCLN connected local leaders from across the country working to develop more sustainable, prosperous and equitable communities. With federal investment, they created and implemented plans to address issues such as concentrated poverty, housing and transportation affordability and other barriers to sustainable development. See <http://betterplansbetterplaces.iscvt.org/> for more details on the program’s approach and accomplishments. The SCLN program was completed in June 2015. In December 2014, the U.S. Department of Energy awarded ISC the National Coordinator role for the Solar Market Pathways Program, a national program designed to accelerate solar deployment. ISC provides technical assistance and network development support to 14 projects across the country focused on various ways to increase solar installation and reduce soft costs, including university campuses, community solar, and building resilience with solar+storage. ISC leads a number of regional capacity-building efforts, including Network Development for Climate Adaptation and Resilience, bringing together communities with similar challenges (for example, in high desert or coastal regions). With support from the Kresge Foundation, ISC supports the implementation of the South Florida Regional Climate Change Compact, other ISC-supported climate adaptation networks include the American Society of Adaptation Professionals and the Resilient Vermont Network. ISC’s new regional resilient initiative is designed to help support the creation of other regional collaboratives. The American Society of Adaptation Professionals is a national network designed to increase collaboration and share knowledge among academic, government and private sector professionals working on adaptation issues. It will become a stand-alone nonprofit organization in 2016.

ASIA. ISC’s Partnership for Climate Action (PCA) program in China is bringing cleaner, healthier, and more sustainable environmental programs and practices to Guangdong and Jiangsu, two of China’s most industrialized provinces. Taking advantage of the best Chinese and U.S. expertise, ISC’s work focuses on developing cooperation among communities, businesses, schools and government to build local commitment to greenhouse gas (GHG) management, environmental health and safety, and energy efficiency to tackle the primary sources of GHG emissions in China. As part of this project, ISC works with environmental nonprofit organizations to improve planning and implementation of low carbon development, and with local organizations to improve environmental compliance and showcase local environmental successes such as community-supported agriculture and residential rooftop solar. PCA completed its work in December 2015 with funding from USAID and corporate and foundation sources. ISC has established two environment, health and safety centers (EHS+ centers) in China to train factory managers to improve worker health and safety while reducing harmful environmental pollution, including GHG emissions. These locally-operated centers in China have been so successful - training more than 20,000 factory managers - that ISC has expanded its EHS+ network, creating local centers in Bangladesh and India. The EHS+ network is a global partnership that connects the EHS+ centers in China, Bangladesh and India and supports ongoing learning among environment, health and safety (EHS) practitioners engaged in the supply chain in Asia. Key partners include GE, Walmart, and Apple, Inc. In 2014, ISC launched its EHS+ center in Bangladesh supported by the Swedish International Development Cooperation Agency (SIDA), Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and USAID. In a strategic partnership with North South University in Dhaka, Bangladesh, the EHS+ center offers trainings for factory managers that continuously move industry standards from basic EHS compliance to more proactive and holistically sustainable practices, with a special focus on the ready-made garment industry. In October 2014, ISC launched its partnership with the Symbiosis Institute for International Business in Pune with funding support from the Walt Disney Company and GE Foundation. The EHS+ centers are now offering training, collaborating on curriculum, and improving industry practices in “Factory Asia.” Also in India, ISC has been awarded two small projects from the Department of State to build U.S.-India collaboration on urban issues. In Asia, ISC is a partner on USAID’s Low Emissions Asian Development (LEAD) program, working on initiatives in India, Vietnam and Thailand. ISC also leads the sub-national working group of the Low Emissions Development Strategies (LEDS) Global Partnership.

EUROPE. SERBIA CIVIL SOCIETY FORWARD - CIVIL SOCIETY FORWARD (CSF) is a 27-month program funded by the U.S. Agency for International Development (USAID) that builds on the success of ISC’s Civil Society Advocacy Initiative (CSAI). It is designed to accelerate local investment in and capacity-building of Serbia-based nonprofit organizations, in preparation for Serbia’s eventual accession to the European Union. CSF will leave a strong cohort of local nonprofit organizations working together to support Serbian citizens. The program was completed in January 2015.
