Rabbi Yosef Tedgo and the members of the local foreign religious community also oversee the process to make sure all recipients are truly in need and are meeting their required obligations of learning, studying, and praying. Part IV Supplemental Information. Provide the information required in Part I, line 2, Part III, column (b), and any other additional information.

Before any support is approved to any individual, it would have to be approved by a majority of the trustees, rabbi, board of directors, and members of the organization. The individuals that receive support are well known religious members of the community. We get to know them through their participation in prayer and our community.

We also visit the individuals and their families at their homes to see how they are living, check if they have a valid need for our financial support, and determine their righteousness. The need for charity is determined by the Rabbi and other board members. Charity is given by buying the recipients essentials based on each individual's and family's needs. None of the charity recipients have been related to any individuals who make charity selections or to any of the officers or board members.

Because we remain continuous contact with the recipients, we are confident that it is used for food, shelter and support for the individuals and their families. If we were to ever discovered any misuse of our funds, we would immediately terminate the relationship and take legal action if necessary.
