990ez part I: (16) Other expenses: these reflects the costs for putting on local (U.S. training in the construction of biosand filters for local volunteers. These costs include construction materials, rental of training facility, training guides and related materials. It also includes the costs for producing our donation- greeting cards that are sold to support a direct filter donation program.

Part III (30) Attached is a list of the major projects completed by Friendly Water for the World in 2015. These include active projects in Kenya, Burundi, Tanzania, Ethiopia, and India. The projects are run with local field representatives that help coordinate multiple projects. Most have set up local construction teams . FFWF also sends U.S. Volunteers these sites and help establish the initial project teams. Once established we work through the local FFWF contact for distribution of funds, progress reports and new project submittals. In addition to providing reusable molds and tools, we provide training in health and sanitation community outreach. Filter building teams are established and encouraged to produce and sell filters in their local community as micro enterprises or community aid initiatives.
