Research Grants Committed CRFs focus is increasingly on the clinical and translational research crucial to making strides towards a cure for cystinosis. CRF is committed to prioritizing and aggressively supporting research that has the potential to significantly improve the quality of life for patients with cystinosis. Funding quality research studies is an ongoing process. CRF announces two global calls for research applications each year. The CRF Scientific Review Board (SRB) evaluates every application received and then recommends applications for funding. Based on the SRB's recommendations, research grants are issued. We are pleased to announce that in 2015 CRF issued 9 grants totaling $1,581,820. The new grants bring us that much closer to better treatments and a cure. CRF has issued grants to the best and brightest researchers in the world. To date, we have funded 131 multi-year research studies at leading research institutions in 12 countries. CRF-funded researchers have published more than 58 articles in prestigious, top-rated journals. Those articles, available to everyone in the world, have added to the understanding of the pathogenesis of cystinosis. From the beginning we have understood that funding basic and bench research was important to understanding cystinosis. Over the years, as discoveries were made in the lab, CRF began funding clinical research, and now we are translating the data from the clinical studies to the patients. One of our earliest milestones, and the one of which we are most proud, is having funded every bench and clinical trial that led to the discovery of a delayed-release form of the life-saving medication cystinosis patients must take. The delayed-release medication, approved by the FDA in 2013, is considered the most significant advancement in the treatment of cystinosis in 30 years. Our latest research milestone is the creation of the first donor stem cell transplantation trial at UCLA, which brings us tantalizingly close to a cure.

Day of Hope Conference Each year the Cystinosis Research Foundation hosts the Day of Hope Family Conference. In 2015, 45 families from around the world gathered along with CRF-funded researchers to share stories, hopes and dreams and build life-long friendships. Leading cystinosis researchers shared their progress on gene and stem cell therapies, novel eye research and neurological challenges related to cystinosis. The conference allows families to learn more about the ongoing cystinosis research and the hope it brings to our community. The Cystinosis Research Foundation has witnessed tremendous growth as other cystinosis families have joined our efforts. Their friends and families have embraced the cystinosis cause and enthusiastically raise funds to support cystinosis research through CRF. We have found strength in numbers and our joint effort gives us a renewed sense of community and purpose.

Corneal Cystinosis We are dedicated to finding better treatments for corneal cystinosis. Corneal cystinosis is caused by the build-up of cystine crystals in the eyes which causes photophobia (extreme sensitivity to light), severe eye pain, and sometimes, blindness. There is an existing treatment but it is rigorous and requires hourly dosing of medicated eye drops. For many, compliance is difficult. CRF-funded researchers Ghanashyam Acharya, PhD, and Jennifer Simpson, MD, have collaborated on a novel treatment for corneal cystinosis. Dr. Acharya invented a nanowafer that we believe will revolutionize the treatment of corneal cystinosis. The nanowafer can be loaded with cysteamine medication, placed in the eye, and as it dissolves, the medication slowly releases eye offering treatment for hours. CRF owns the license for the cysteamine-loaded wafer, which has allowed us to drive the research forward as quickly as possible with the ultimate goal of obtaining FDA approval of a new treatment for corneal cystinosis. Dr. Acharya and Dr. Simpson have committed their time to ensuring that this potential treatment will reach patients with cystinosis. This is a multi-year project but we have an excellent team in place dedicated to working with us to reach our goal.
