What? Memory Trees works with the Palm Beach School for Autism to help cross the chasm between highly gifted children, and those with autism spectrum conditions We invested in a community garden for the school, enabling children to plant, nurture, and (eventually) harvest fresh produce The benefits of this program extend beyond vocational experience gained as a result of hands-on gardening The children are trained to pack a promotional product - Memory Trees To Go - for resale Profits derived from sales revenue were ploughed back into this and other programs for their developmentally challenged children Why? The genetic roots of conditions like autism - or other disabling problems like mood disorders which have been linked with exceptional creativity - should not be viewed as wholly negative The same "risk" genes may lead to both debilitating autism, and great intellectual gifts The statement above is a byproduct of a lack of public education and understanding Now, when Memory Trees offers corporations, other nonprofits, schools, etc Memory Trees To Go as a fundraising product, we are creating awareness of the genius of autistic children, at every sales opportunity, event we attend, and more Who? Several community businesses and corporations have already committed to contribute in-kind sponsorships Memory Trees offers a wealth of experience in the creation of sustainable children's education programs, complemented by healthy activities, like gardening (Grants $ 15,000) If this amount includes foreign grants, check here . . . ☐		30a	15,000
