PART III, PRIMARY EXEMPT PURPOSE

The purpose of Family HEART Camp is to provide diverse opportunities for families and individuals to experience meaningful meaningful community based in the principles and practices of Nonviolent Communication (NVC). Family HEART Camp (FHC) offers an an immersive experience in compassionate community, for people of all ages, in places of natural beauty. Grounded in the principles of Nonviolent Communication (NVC), as developed by Marshall B. Rosenberg PhD, FHC offers a clear and specific set of tools to support effective communication and conflict resolution. FHC helps families find creative and interactive ways to transform conflicts, teaching parents the skills to inspire joyful cooperation while imparting the values they hold dear, and forming strong life-long bonds. At camp parents experience relief from struggling with their children, finding the support they need in a setting where peace, mutual respect, and compassionate relationships are the norm. Our programming combines didactic learning in classroom type settings, with the more experiential learning of large field games, arts and crafts, making music, creating skits and exploring nature. Families foster connection by practicing together in a safe environment in real time, supporting them in their efforts to put into practice what they are learning, extending this this experience into their daily lives. Our experienced staff teach the skills and practice of NVC and offer individual support to participants and families as they work through struggles in their family lives, and strengthen their NVC skills.
