1 Briefly describe the organization's mission

Crossroads Community Services was founded in 2001, by First United Methodist Church, Dallas. In 2015, With THE faithful support of the Church, Crossroads rebranded itself and began operating as an independent nonprofit organization in order to gain wider community support. Today, we continue to nourish people and power change by striving to physically and economically nurture our community's low-income families by providing nutritious food and supportive education. We have two primary goals: help ensure that all people in Dallas County have access to nourishing foods, and offer nutrition education that can help reduce obesity in impoverished areas. Through the years, we have learned there are no quick-fix, sound-bite solutions to deeply entrenched social and economic problems. We do this work because no one, especially children, should have to experience the physical and emotional impact of missing multiple meals.

4a (Code) (Expenses) $ 5,550,440 including grants of $ 5,162,827 (Revenue) $ 160,214

The Crossroads model allows for nutritious food and nutrition education to be provided in an efficient, effective, equitable, and dignified manner. We do this work because no one, especially children, should have to experience the physical and emotional impact of missing multiple meals. Substantial Amounts of Nutritious Food. In 2007, we developed the Nutrition-Based Food Selection System which matches the kinds and amounts of food a household receives with each person's age, gender and relative activity level, as recommended by the Dietary Guidelines for Americans. At Crossroads' Downtown Dallas food pantry clients select the foods their families enjoy within each food group. Over the years we have learned the value of giving more food per person per visit. That's why a family of four will receive approximately 100 pounds of groceries, which have a retail value of around $200, each time they visit Crossroads. Our most popular items are typically fresh fruits and vegetables, frozen lean meats, eggs and milk. The nutritious food given in substantial amounts serves three important purposes: 1) it provides the foundation for healthy, balanced meals for each household member, 2) clients can spend less of their valuable time going from pantry to pantry in order to provide for their families, and 3) it frees up much needed household income, which is money our clients can use for housing, medical, or education related expenses. Community Distribution Partners (CDPs). Crossroads distributes food at a Downtown Dallas food pantry and through a network of 79 Community Distribution Partners. In 2006, we began development of the CDP network to address the nutritional needs of families and individuals with mental, physical, or transportation challenges. We soon realized that this distribution approach has a broader application and can benefit anyone living in neighborhoods with little or no access to healthy foods, or those who struggle to afford the foods their families need to live healthy lives. Crossroads serves as a distribution "hub, or mini-food bank, obtaining only the nutritious foods available at the North Texas Food Bank. The CDP sites, or "spokes," are churches, community centers, low-income retirement communities, and agencies that have identified a chronic need for healthy food among their congregations, residents, neighbors or clients. CDPs utilize their own vehicles and volunteers or staff to pick up the food from Crossroads, their own facility space to distribute the food, and draw upon their own passion for serving those in need. Many of our Partners are too small or not suited to take on the burdens of staffing, inventory management and all the other requirements of being a North Texas Food Bank partner agency. Using the Crossroads model, CDPs pick-up and then distribute the food on the same day, and holding food for 48 hours for those who could come that day. Together, Crossroads and CDPs are able to maximize the use of dollars and resources to get the right food into neighborhoods in Dallas County that need it most. Due to the success of Crossroads' hub-and-spoke distribution model, the North Texas Food Bank selected us to be their Redistribution Organization for Dallas County, providing us even better access to their selection of nutritious foods and a more modest handling fee for the food. Due to this partnership, dollars donated to Crossroads are stretched even further. Another exciting development in our ever-growing relationship with the North Texas Food Bank is their adoption of Crossroads' hub-and-spoke model. Last year, the Food Bank announced their decision to implement this model throughout their 13-county service area in the coming years. All of us at Crossroads are so excited that we could make this contribution to such a great partner organization and to the community. Crossroads staff is working closely with the Food Bank and future "hubs" to ensure their success. Research. Crossroads strives to be at the forefront of social service innovation, specifically in the arena of hunger intervention. A major component of our work is our participation in CARE (Community Assistance Research); we work with researchers from UT Southwestern Medical Center and the University of Dallas. Our work is funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. In June of 2015 we took our partnership a step further than merely allowing researchers access to our client database; we developed and integrated a survey into our client in-take process and offered our clients the opportunity to participate in focus groups. Clients are now asked to complete the survey upon each visit to Crossroads. The survey questions cover topics such as the household's access to food and the client's current health. Preliminary findings were that 83% of Crossroads clients experienced food insecurity in the 30 days prior to taking the survey, and 17% of them experienced severe food insecurity and hunger. 42% of our clients reported being in fair or poor health, and 87% of those who came for assistance in June and July were overweight or obese. Focus groups of clients were held with a focus on cancer detection and intervention. The findings were presented at the American Society of Preventive Oncology Annual Meeting in Birmingham, Alabama and received high honors. The primary goal of Crossroads' participation in this research is to gain a better understanding of the food security, or insecurity, of our clients. Is receiving nutritious groceries at Crossroads making an impact in the lives of our clients? Is it making an impact on their health? What are the true food and health needs of this particular low-income population who rarely have a voice in matters which directly affect the well-being of their families? Our research partners tell us that having access to our clients is unique and is unduplicated across the country. It is providing previously unobtainable data to health and hunger researchers, policymakers, and the public. The Impact. The retail value and benefit to the community of the food and clothing Crossroads distributed in 2015, was around $5,988,000. This savings allows our clients to redirect those dollars in times of unemployment, underemployment, or for use on unexpected expenses. The average family of four will potentially save $1000/year in grocery bills if they visit Crossroads' Downtown Dallas pantry or $1780/year when visiting a CDP site regularly. We purposefully give our clients large amounts of the food we get for pennies on the dollar from the North Texas Food Bank. In 2015, Crossroads clients received $5,400,000 (the average retail value) of food an average of $251/person served at our in-house pantry, and $447/person served at a Community Distribution Partner site each year. CDP Clients often live in a state of chronic need, visiting their CDP 9-10 times each year, while our Downtown Dallas clients visit 3-4 times a year. Demographics. Crossroads serves low-income individuals and families living at 185% or less of the national poverty level. In 2015 our clients were 56% Hispanic, 32% African American, 10% Caucasian, and 2% Asian/Other. 38% of our clients were under the age of 18, 29% were ages 18-45, 22% were 46-64, and 11% were 65 or older. 56% were female, and 44% were male.
