SCIENCE - The AGU Science Department is responsible for AGU talent pool and professional education programs - providing support to AGU members through all career stages, and for serving as focal point for scientific program-related activities which cut across AGU disciplines, including areas such as scientific ethics programs, honors and recognition programs for AGU members, and for AGU scientific initiatives such as the Thriving Earth Exchange Program. Key highlights for AGU talent pool programs in 2015 were a 50% growth in the AGU Student and Early Career Conference, introduction of an AGU meeting-mentorship program, and the introduction of a promising new program - the Virtual Poster Showcase - allowing students to present their research and receive feedback from anywhere across the globe. Each of these three emerging new talent pool programs received strongly favorable feedback from participants to encourage continued growth. AGU's student travel grant activities also expanded in 2015. AGU provided travel support for more than 225 students to participate in the 2015 Fall Meeting and provided all-expense paid full support to 18 Berkner students from developing nations to participate in the 2015 San Francisco AGU Fall Meeting and the 2015 Montreal Joint Assembly Meeting. This year also saw the growth of student and early-career member support through a special $5000 allocation to each of the 23 AGU Section and Focus Groups to help encourage and support student program initiatives. The AGU Outstanding Student Paper Award program in 2015 enjoyed over 2600 student participants and engaged over 2000 volunteer judges. AGU's scientific partnerships expanded in 2015 to include programmatic activities with the International Association for the Promoting GeoEthics (IAPG), and new partnerships with the American Society for Microbiology (ASM), leading to new joint-interdisciplinary scientific meeting activities. The AGU Thriving Earth Exchange program also grew its partnerships and impact in 2015, and is now providing solutions to more than 15 local communities across the globe, on issues associated with climate change, natural resource limitations and natural disasters.
