The organization has over 250 members, and seeks the solicitation of funds from the general public and members. The Board of Directors each years reviews research papers, and proposals for research on human behavior. The board from various submissions determines the Measley and Aklis awards. The society in addition prints a quarterly bulletin, and in alternative years has either a general member congress or educational summer program. At these events there are society meetings, speakers, and papers presented on human behavior.
