Return Reference	Explanation
Part I-A, Line 1 - Direct and Indirect Political Campaign Activities	Our lobbyist attends many meetings related to mental health care and healthcare in general, such as the Legislative Interim Healthcare Committee, the various Medicaid Committee meetings, the various boards such as the Board of Medical Examiners, etc. She attends to keep us apprised of what is happening and to ask questions, answer questions and help members of these committees obtain information on issues related to mental health. She meets with legislators between sessions and during sessions to inform them of the NPA's position on bills related to mental health and illness and gives them related information to help them understand our position and hopefully take it into account while voting. She meets with legislative candidates during election season to assess their interest and knowledge of mental health issues and helps to educate them. She makes recommendations on candidates for small contributions from our PAC. She spends much time perusing the news and the Internet for articles of interest which she sends to the executive director, who sends it on to our members. Thus she has become an invaluable asset to our organization, the legislature and the various committees associated with the running of the state.
