Explanation: This delay is entirely my mistake, and I assume full responsibility for it: the organization had selected the current fiscal year at its inception. However, in recent years, under an operational point of view, the organization has operated more and more on a calendar basis, rather than based on the official fiscal year. This was not a problem when our revenues were way below $50,000/year, and we filed the form 990N (ePostcard) each year. However, this year we both saw a sudden increase in our revenue and for the first time we had to file the form 990. When I realized I had made a mistake, it was already quite late, and the fact that I am inexperienced with these filings added to the delay. Moving forward, the organization and I have taken the following steps: 1) we are securing the services of a certified accountant who will take care of all the filings, moving forward, and assist with the management of the organization; 2) we will request a change in the fiscal year, to reflect more closely the way the organization works; 3) I will rotate off soon as the organization's treasurer, and the new treasurer will have the support of experienced fiscal managers from the start. I apologize! Lucia Pirisi-Creek

Form 990, Part III, Line 2	During the year 2015-16, NAIPI maintained the NAIPI website and outcomes database, organized monthly teleconferences of the Executive Committee, and the annual meeting of the membership, and of the National Committee, coordinated communication across all the IDeA programs in 23 states and Puerto Rico, and substantially contributed to the organization of the National IDeA Symposium of Biomedical Research Excellence (NISBRE), held in Washington, DC, June 26-29, 2016, by serving as the agent that collected registration fees for this symposium and covered many of the Symposium expenses, including the cost of food. The NISBRE is held every two years to bring together scientists (faculty, students, program leaders, technical staff, core facilities directors) from the IDeA states who participate in/contribute to IDeA funded programs. The symposium includes scientific presentations by faculty and students, in both oral and poster sessions, technical and career-development workshops open to all participants, on topics ranging from genomics to time management and mentoring, to grant writing, the NISBRE also includes a series of meetings of the technical personnel and directors of core facilities, who share best practices and management practices. Symposium activities start early in the morning, with a 7:00 am sunrise session organized during breakfast, and dedicated to mentoring, and continue through lunch with poster sessions and specific activities. Hence, the need to cover food for all participants, as it would have been very inefficient (and also unsafe, given the number of students in attendance) to send everyone out of the symposium venue to get lunch. Hence, by managing registrations and taking care of food costs, NAIPI contributed to the Symposium organization in a very substantial way.
