In fiscal year 2016, Habitat improved the housing conditions of 3 million people through new home construction, rehabilitation, incremental improvements, repairs, or increased access to improved shelter through partnerships with the public and private sectors. In addition, nearly 2.1 million people now have the potential to improve their housing conditions as a result of Habitats advocacy efforts that changed policies and systems to allow more access to shelter solutions, as well as Habitats provision of information and training in construction, financial management and other housing-related topics. In the U.S. and Canada, Habitat for Humanity served roughly 30,000 people with construction interventions in the United States in FY16. In the true sense of community development, U.S. affiliates are partnering not only with Habitat families, but also with families within those communities. Through housing support services, (financial and literacy training, community-based programs, playgrounds, gardens, etc.) U.S. Habitat affiliates assisted more than twice as many people in FY16 as we did through direct partnerships. Affiliates participated in 12,045 community projects in FY16. For example, 1,260 clean up days, 673 community garden activities, 3,385 youth programs. Examples in the U.S. and Canada include: In the past year, Disaster Corps volunteers have contributed 4,940 hours of service over 43 deployments supporting affiliates responding to and preparing for disasters. Significant achievements in FY2016 included the culmination of the three-year Rebuild Colorado flood recovery effort, which repaired 39 homes and built 15 new homes. Additionally, Habitat supported response and recovery efforts throughout California, Washington, Wyoming, South Carolina, Texas, Oklahoma, Illinois, New York and New Jersey. Through the "Pathways to Permanence" framework, Habitat continues to develop new tools and partnerships to help communities rebuild and become more resilient against future threats. The ninth annual National Women Build Week challenged women to devote at least one day between April 30 and May 8 to help build affordable housing in their communities. More than 17,000 women volunteered at one of 300 host sites, which included Atlanta, Austin, Cincinnati, Dallas/Ft. Worth, Indianapolis, Miami-Ft. Lauderdale, Philadelphia, Fayetteville, San Diego and Seattle. Lowes, the sponsor of National Women Build Week, donated $1.75 million to support the event. The Mortgage Procedures and Regulations team delivered 91 training sessions to more than 1,700 participants. Nearly 1,000 Habitat personnel are enrolled in the Loan Originator Curriculum, which is up 11% over the previous year. The curriculum satisfies the federal training requirement for the Truth in Lending Acts Loan Originator qualification. Also, as a result of the Pricing and Alternative Financing Options project, the Expanded Third Party Loan Testing initiative was launched in January 2016. Affiliates have an opportunity to opt in and provide loan production information for loans originated by the affiliate and directly to Habitat homebuyers by a third party lending provider. This information will be collected over a two-year period and analyzed to inform guidelines and or a policy for third party direct lending. Nine more Habitat affiliates signed the Neighborhood Revitalization pledge in FY16, bringing the total to 246. Those affiliates served 6,245 families, or more than 60% of the total families served by U.S. affiliates. The programs holistic approach continues to expand Habitats traditional partnership with homeowners and volunteers, as the program creates buy-in from neighbors, community leaders and local organizations to achieve a broader impact. -Of the 175 Neighborhood Revitalization FY16 survey respondents, 84% reported their case for support is stronger because of their Neighborhood Revitalization work. -The 175 Neighborhood Revitalization FY16 survey respondents reported being able to raise more than $54 million because their affiliate is doing Neighborhood Revitalization work. In Canada, Habitat for Humanity Canadas three-year partnership with HFH Haiti in Simon Pele funded by Global Affairs Canada Investing in People and Business - completed the multi-year project in April. The results included 3,200 participants trained and empowered with knowledge, skills and tools needed to secure work opportunities and 22 community infrastructure projects serving a community of 30,000 residents in Port-au-Prince. More than 5,000 community members reported an increase in well being, over 2,600 participants reported a reduction in vulnerability, and more than 1,200 people experienced an increase in work days.

International Program. In nearly 70 countries, Habitat for Humanity International works with national Habitat organizations and other partners to expand access to decent, affordable housing. The international work is divided administratively into three geographic areas: Asia and the Pacific served 167,050 individuals with construction solutions in FY2016, and 36,640 additional individuals with housing support services. Europe, Asia and the Middle East served 67,830 individuals with construction solutions in FY2016, and 54,645 additional individuals with housing support services. Latin America and the Caribbean served 382,550 individuals with construction solutions in FY2016, and 91,285 additional individuals with housing support services. In each area, approaches vary dramatically according to local needs and opportunities, but Habitat programs in FY2016 shared some common themes. Rebuilding after disasters: Habitat for Humanity was involved in timely, multi-faceted disaster response and risk reduction around the world in FY 2016. For example, incessant rains and flash floods in November and December 2015 in Tamil Nadu, India, led to the loss of more than 320 lives and the destruction of 25,000 homes. Habitat India first provided food and water to 12,476 individuals and then distributed 7,000 humanitarian aid kits. Later, Habitat raised more than US$95,000 to rebuild homes in the area. Habitat was also giving aid in the Syrian refugee crisis. Habitat for Humanity Macedonia set up operations along its border with Greece to provide shelter for refugees fleeing the conflict in Syria, as Europe continued to cope with its biggest stream of refugees since World War II. Expanding the use of housing microfinance to enable incremental housing improvements: Thousands of people in Peru have benefitted from the alliance between the financial institution Mibanco and Habitats Terwilliger Center for Innovation in Shelter in Latin America and the Caribbean, established in 2009 to facilitate access to housing microcredits and technical assistance to low-income families. In FY16, Habitat and Mibanco renewed their alliance until 2020, in a project called "Strengthening the progressive house construction system for the pyramids base in Peru." Sponsored by the Inter-American Development Bank, the project focuses on Mibanco personnel training, on facilitating the integration of hardware stores and material builders in the home improvements, and on creating promotional materials that depict how housing investment impacts the clients well-being. Working with vulnerable populations: Habitat Haitis HOME Program is designed to unlock the potential of the housing market and demonstrate that viable private/public sector partnerships can contribute towards reducing the housing deficit in Haiti. HOME aims to increase the availability of safe, durable and affordable housing by improving access to housing finance products tailored to low-income families and other vulnerable groups often excluded from the formal banking sector. Linking improvements in housing with health, water and sanitation issues: In Fiji, Habitat helps remote communities gain access to reliable water supply with funding support from donors. In February 2016, for example, the Australian government funded a US$30,000 water project in Kia village. Through its Community Water Program, HFH Fiji trains communities to manage and conserve water resources as well as to maintain water systems that have been installed. Encouraging environmental sustainability: Habitat for Humanity Romania inaugurated the Community Resource Centre at Boldesti-Scaeni. The center was built for educational and social programs for disadvantaged people in the community. Adrian Pop, representative of the Center for Sustainable Built Environment (CSBE) and young architect, and Ionut Ciolos from Habitat for Humanity Romania developed the concept and oversaw its implementation. One of the buildings strengths is the selection of materials. Traditional materials, straw bales for insulation, roof shingles and clay plaster, were used along with innovative materials like permeable concrete or foundation on metal pillars. The building is independent of public water, electricity and gas main. The building draws drinking water from a well, and rainwater is collected and used for toilets. Wastewater is treated and turned into fertilizers, electricity comes from 45 solar panels and the heat is provided by radiant panels. An estimated 2 million people die each year as a result of cooking over an open fire, according to the World Bank. In some countries in Latin America, this is a common practice that entails serious issues such as respiratory diseases and burns, as well as deforestation. To help families who live in extreme poverty and who cook over an open fire, Habitat Mexico began an eco-stoves project for 244 families in La Montana region.

Public Awareness and Education. Through every possible medium electronic, visual, spoken and printed Habitat for Humanity strives to put shelter on the hearts and minds of people in such a powerful way that inadequate housing becomes unacceptable. Habitat magazine is the flagship print and online publication of Habitat for Humanity and reaches more than 2 million readers each year, and habitat.org is the primary electronic vehicle for sharing Habitats vision and information about its mission with the public. Habitat is also very active on many social media platforms, and produces and distributes public service announcements. A brief sampling of some of FY2016s events and activities -Habitats 2016 Shelter Report "Level the field: Ending gender inequality in land rights" explained how land tenure is one of the great challenges Habitat for Humanity faces in helping families access decent housing. Countless families around the world lack rights to the land on which they live. Habitat is working side by side with women to increase their property rights in a number of ways, including offering microloans and education on land and inheritance rights. Advocacy concerning land tenure is a huge focus in our work around the world. From community decision-making bodies to national governments and international organizations, Habitat is working at all levels to change policies and systems. -In observance of the United Nations-designated World Habitat Day on the first Monday in October, Habitat affiliates across the United States and organizations around the world staged special events to raise awareness and educate individuals and communities to call for programs, policies, and systems that make possible a world where everyone has a decent place to live. -Habitat provides a variety of programs that enable hundreds of thousands of volunteers to work alongside homeowners in building and repairing safe, decent, affordable homes. Among these are Global Village trips, Care-A-Vanners, hundreds of retirees in mobile homes who crisscross the country helping others, Women Build, including National Women Build Week which took place in May, and Collegiate Challenge.
