Family Resource Centers Families struggling through crises or challenging situations know they can find experienced practitioners who are responsive, accessible, and compassionate. Hillside's offers numerous community-based programs and services through several Hillside's Family Resource Centers in Los Angeles County. These centers provide parenting classes, mental health support, psychological testing, psychiatric assessments and medication management, crisis intervention and additional crucial resources for children and families in need. They also provide in-home individual and family therapy to families at risk who are unable to access the services in our resource centers. Hillside's staff intervenes before children are removed from their homes in order to preserve families, help them begin to recover, and create secure, permanent living environments. In addition, the agency offers school-based mental health services in surrounding school districts because children's needs are often first detected in the school setting. Hillside's turns obstacles into opportunities to restore hope and honor the inherent integrity of each individual in every family. For this fiscal period, 1,924 clients and 5,745 families were serviced.

Residential Treatment Services Children come first at Hillside's. The Residential Treatment Services program provides a safe and stable environment where children and youth, who have been removed from their homes or have severe emotional or behavioral challenges, can thrive. Hillside's dynamic team of expert help youngsters restore hope, rediscover the joy of childhood, and achieve their dreams of a happy future. The agency's main campus, located on 17 acres of park-like grounds, includes five cottages, an arts and recreation center, children's resource center, nursing offices for children and families, a playground, swimming pool, and a child-friendly library. Two off-campus homes house teenagers learning independent living skills in preparation for emancipation. We also strive to reunite children with their biological family, guardians, anyone that is invested and capable of taking care of children. With input from children and families, Hillside's partners with other agencies and resources to provide them with the highest quality continuum of care and ensure they reach their full potential. For this fiscal period, 113 clients and 263 families were serviced.

Education Center The Hillside Education Center ("HEC") is a state-certified non-public school serving students in special education. HEC educates and serves both day students, or students living within the community, and students living in the residential program of Hillside's. In July of 2015, HEC became an accredited school through Western Association of Schools and Colleges. HEC believes that given the appropriate supports, all students can make great strides towards achieving their academic, developmental, and social/emotional potential. HEC uses a philosophy of skill development to create lasting change. Students who attend HEC commonly have had difficulty within their school careers and have experienced high levels of failure, academically, socially, and behaviorally. For this fiscal period, 133 clients and 198 families were serviced.
