It exists to bring together the resources and activities required to advance understanding of the visual arts taken in their widest possible significance. The Getty Research Institute provides valuable support for scholars through a residential scholars program and extensive research collections, which include over 27,400 linear feet of manuscripts, 1,370 linear feet of archives, 5,380 linear feet of photographs, 2,400 linear feet of architectural models, 5,090 artists books, two million study photographs, 72,420 rare books and serials, 1,352,638 volumes of printed books, periodicals, auction catalogues, and 278,715 volumes in electronic format. Access to the collections and to scholarship conducted at the Research Institute is made available at the local, national, and international levels through active publications and exhibitions programs, online databases, and a wide range of public programming that includes lectures, performances, and symposia. The Research Library The Research Library service desks, including the Special Collections Reading Room, were open to serve outside patrons for approximately 38 hours per week. As of June 30, a total of 10,151 readers were registered to use the library. The Research Library recorded 14,548 visits by outside patrons to the collections. Nearly 425 Extended Readers were provided access to the library for an additional 50 hours per week. Research Library staff answered 12,291 reference requests made by outside patrons. The Research Library circulated 46,681 items to outside patrons. The Research Library received 9,676 Interlibrary Loan Requests from other libraries and academic institutions. The Research Library circulated 26,398 general collections and 20,283 special collections items to outside patrons for a total of 46,681 items in FY16. The Research Library loaned 325 original items for public exhibition to outside institutions, including the exhibitions World War I War of Images, Images of War at the Mildred Lane Kemper Art Museum, St. Louis, Robert Maplethorpe The Perfect Medium at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, and The Beat Generation at the Centre Georges Pompidou, Paris. The Research Library staff hosted meetings and provided mentoring, training, workshops, participated in symposiums, panel discussions, and lectures and classes for non-profit cultural and professional organizations, colleges, universities and other institutions. Research Databases Since April 1, 2011, the Getty has provided access to the Bibliography of the History of Art (BHA) and to the Répertoire de la littérature de l'art (RILA) for no charge on its Web site at http://library.getty.edu/bha. The databases, searchable together, cover material published between 1975 and 2007, and average approximately 715 online searches per day. The Getty Research Portal has added another three contributing institutions, and now offers global and open access to more than 102,000 digitized art history texts. In the past year, 186,745 searches were performed in the Portal. The Project for the Study of Collecting and Provenance (PSCP), which includes the Getty Provenance Index, is currently involved in two ongoing database projects: "British Sales 1680-1780" which is a collaboration with the National Gallery, London, and "German Sales 1901-1930" which is a collaboration with the University Library Heidelberg and Kunstbibliothek, SMPK Berlin. The "Knoedler Stock Books" database, which received financial support from the Samuel H. Kress Foundation, has been finished and released recently. All Provenance Index databases are accessible online free of charge. The Provenance Index with transcriptions of archival inventories, sale catalogs, dealer stock books, and other relevant documents offer a rich resource for scholars around the world interested in the study of collecting and provenance. The Getty Vocabulary Program provided online resources, education and outreach activities, mentoring and training, including Webinars, telephone and e-mail consultations, workshops, presentations at conferences, and on-site meetings and demonstrations, to Web users as well as staff from numerous non-profit cultural organizations during fiscal year 2016. The four Getty vocabulary databases (Art & Architecture Thesaurus, Union List of Artist Names, Getty Thesaurus of Geographic Names, and Cultural Objects Name Authority) as well as the iconography module (CONA Iconography Authority) continued to be available on the World Wide Web free of charge. Average usage (page views) for all four of these searchable vocabularies for 2016 were consistently among the top resources accessed at the GRI Web site, growing to approximately 225,000 searches per month, with users from all fifty states in the United States and many foreign countries, the preponderance of usage of the Getty vocabularies on the Web is from ".edu" institutions. In addition the ongoing licensing of the data files to not for profits, a new method of releasing the data free of charge as Linked Open Data was put into effect for AAT, TGN, and ULAN, allowing implementers of the vocabularies to freely link and use the data in digital art history and other applications. The vocabulary resources are heavily used and accessed by thousands of users monthly, including libraries, museums, archival professionals, students, and other users in the U.S. and internationally. The publications of the Vocabulary Program included a revised edition of the Introduction to Controlled Vocabularies, the online Categories for the Description of Works of Art, editorial manuals, training modules, cataloguing examples, and sample data for downloading and testing, all which continued to be available free of charge on the GRI's Web site. The Getty Vocabulary Program consulted free of charge with the Pinacoteca de São Paulo and other Brazilian entities, who translated and published the Introduction to Controlled Vocabularies in Portuguese. Part IX-A Summary of Direct Charitable Activities Line 3	Part IX-A Summary of Direct Charitable Activities Line 3	The Getty Conservation Institute ("GCI") The Getty Conservation Institute (GCI) serves the conservation community through scientific research, education and training, model field projects, and the dissemination of the results of both its own work and the work of others in the field. The GCI focuses on the creation and delivery of knowledge that will benefit the professionals and organizations responsible for the conservation of the world's cultural heritage. Examples of the Getty Conservation Institutes activities in North and Central America, Africa, Europe, and the Middle East are included below. From May 7th through September 4th, 2016, the Getty exhibition Cave Temples of Dunhuang Buddhist Art on China's Silk Road opened to the public. Organized by the Getty Conservation Institute, the Getty Research Institute, the Dunhuang Academy, and the Dunhuang Foundation, the exhibition will celebrate the over 25 years of collaboration between the GCI and the Dunhuang Academy to conserve and protect the Mogao Grottoes, a World Heritage site. In July 2015, the Nineteenth International Course on Stone Conservation concluded in Rome. This partnership between the GCI, ICCROM (International Centre for the Study of the Preservation and Restoration of Cultural Property) and the Non-Catholic Cemetery in Rome, brought together twenty international midcareer conservators, architects, scientists and engineers to participate in a twelve-week, in-depth program to address all aspects of stone conservation. In October 2015, the GCI partnered with the University Art Museum at California State University, Long Beach and the Museum of Latin American Art to present, "FAR-SITED Creating and Conserving Art in Public Places", a three-day conference examining the creation and conservation of public art. On November 12, 2015, the GCI hosted, "Abstract Expressionism Time, Intention, Conservation, and Meaning" at the Getty Center. Organized by the Clyfford Still Museum Research Center, this day-long gathering focused on the conservation and preservation of abstract expressionist artworks. Conservation scientists and conservators with extensive and unique knowledge of these artists' materials and techniques presented talks discussing how their discipline may impact our understanding of the artists' work. As part of the GCIs Middle East Photograph Preservation Initiative (MEPPI), the GCI hosted the first environmental workshop in Beirut, in November 2015. The workshop included lectures, case studies, practical exercises, and visits to photograph collections to provide participants, already active in photograph preservation, with in-depth learning opportunities and practical skills development activities to explore environmental impact, condition assessments, environmental monitoring and control options, selecting and creating enclosures, cold storage, lighting, and mold management for photograph collections. In November 2015, the GCI, Getty Research Institute, and Tate host a major international conference, "Media in Transition", at Tate Modern in London. The conference focused on the implications of collecting time-based media works of art and related practices. The program explored how the field is adapting and responding to these new forms of artistic practice, and how emerging modes of collaboration between artists, conservators, art historians, technical experts, and curators can help advance the field. The GCI hosted a panel discussion, Design, Transform, Conserve. The Remaking of Sunnyslands, in January 2016. Experts offered multiple perspectives on how the transformation of Sunnyslands, from a private residence to a public facility, is a masterful example of adaptive reuse that encompasses architecture, landscape design, preservation, and water conservation. In February 2016, the Getty Conservation Institute, with the Lunder Conservation Center at the Smithsonian American Art Museum and the National Portrait Gallery in Washington, DC, organized a two-day class, "Master Class on Museum Lighting Options Beyond White LED" to discuss recent developments in museum and gallery lighting and to present methodologies for the effective use and evaluation of the new generations of LED lighting for museum settings. The GCI and the Getty Foundation hosted the 4th International Iconic Houses Conference, "A California State of Mind The Modern House Museum in Southern California" at the Getty Center, in February 2016. The three-day lecture and tour program was attended by 120 stewards and professionals involved in the conservation of important modern houses. The conference included two workshops hosted by the GCI. The first, on conservation management plans and how to use these tools to provide a framework for the care and conservation of historic places. The second, focused on sustainable funding for small house museums. In March of 2016, the GCI, in partnership with the University of Santa Barbara, hosted a two-day symposium, "Analytical Methodologies & Research Partnerships at the Interface of Chemistry & Art/Archeology", during the 251st American Chemical Society National Meeting & Exposition in San Diego. In conjunction with the GCI's Contemporary Architecture in the Historic Environment (CAHE) project, in March 2016, the GCI hosted "The Iconic Building and the Historic City" at the Getty Center. Invited Speaker, Charles Jencks, a world-renowned cultural theorist, landscape designer, architectural critic and historian examined the iconic building trend and discussed the role of these new constructions in historic cities. The event advanced the CAHE projects focus of developing methodologies and tools to guide the design of new buildings in historic environments and assess their impacts. As part of the Getty exhibition, Cave Temples of Dunhuang Buddhist Art on China's Silk Road, in May, the Getty Conservation Institute and the University of California, Los Angeles hosted a scholarly symposium, bringing together more than twenty international scholars to explore the unique confluence of historical perspectives, spiritual content artistic practice and innovation approaches to conservation at the Mogao Grottoes site. Extending the themes of the symposium to a larger audience, in June, the GCI hosted a public lecture to discuss the Diamond Sutra (the world's first complete book bearing a date) to provide the public with additional insights into the exhibition. In June, the GCI, the Museo del Novecento, and the Modern Materials and Contemporary Art working group of ICOM-CC, in partnership with INCCA, presented "Keep it Moving? Conserving Kinetic Art", a conference on kinetic art and its preservation. The conference took into consideration the artists' point of view, as well as the ethical dilemma and practical challenges of conserving and documenting this art form. The conference took place in Milan, to coincide with the beginning of the ICOM General Conference. Furthering the GCIs practice of donating used/aging scientific equipment to arts organizations and universities, the GCI donate a gas chromatography/mass spectrometry system and nitrogen generator to College of the Desert in Palm Desert, California. The system replaced the colleges broken equipment, allowing students the opportunity to conduct hands-on experimentation. The GCI donated display case materials to the Instituto del Patrimonio Cultural de Espana in Madrid, Spain. The resulting display cases will initially be used as part of a scientific exhibition showing anoxia environments for very delicate and special contemporary art objects, but will continue to be used for the storage of precious objects. The Getty Conservation Institute's Science Department led 27 tours of our facilities to conservation professionals or groups, local colleges and universities (including Mount St. Marys College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, University of Virginia, USC's Summer Heritage Conservation program, Claremont College, Pomona College, CalArts, and the Korea National University of Cultural Heritage), local high school groups, and other professional organizations including the Robert H. N. Ho Foundation, the Turkish Delegation, and City of Hope. The GCI hosted eight conservation guest scholars who conducted their own research on topics including built environment cultural heritage values, plastics in modern and contemporary art and design, and museum lighting for conservators and curators. The Getty Conservation Institute hosted a two-year postdoctoral fellow in the Science department working with the GCI Sciences newly-formed 'Treatment Studies' research area and will be an integral part of working with colleagues in related research areas, such as Materials Characterization. The GCIs postdoctoral fellowship is a two-year program designed to provide recent PhDs in chemistry and the physical sciences with experience in conservation science.
