Public Education The Neuro Film Festival is an annual video contest to help raise awareness about brain disorders and the need to support research into preventions, treatments, and cures. The 2016 Neuro Film Festival generated nearly 60 entries and the winning entries were featured at the AAN Annual Meeting and on YouTube. The AAN shares its knowledge of and love for the brain each year with the community in the Annual Meeting's host city through the popular Brain Health Fair. For its work in helping people understand the science of neurology and embrace the new milestones in research, the Brain Health Fair received a Silver Award in the American Society of Association Executives Power of A Awards, which recognize organizations with innovative, effective, and broad-reaching programs and activities that positively impact America and the world. Neuroscience Is™ is a campaign by the AANI to build public awareness and demonstrate the importance of neuroscience research in care of neurology patients and the development of cures for brain diseases. Four new work groups were established to help direct this initiative, which demonstrates how Neuroscience Is "Cool," "Rewarding," "Essential," and "Critical." In 2016, the AANI reached out to the public at the 2016 Brain Health Fair with resources, games, and social media opportunities to demonstrate why neuroscience is cool, and held a Neuroscience Is Cool video contest, which encouraged students to submit short videos about why neuroscience is cool to help shape a lifelong interest in the field. Neuroscientists of all career stages took part in interviews to discuss why neuroscience is a rewarding career path. These videos will be available on AAN.com and will be shown at the 2017 Annual Meeting.

Form 990 (2016)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Annual Meeting and Regional Conferences AAN conferences are the backbone of its continuing medical education and sharing of scientific research. They also provide the opportunity for members to interact with leading experts in the field and network with colleagues. Canada warmly welcomed 11,670 attendees and more than 2,700 abstracts to a boldly reimagined and innovative AAN Annual Meeting in Vancouver, BC, in April. Changes began with registration. Instead of the usual base registration fee and additional costs for some 230 education courses wrapped into a tightly structured pre-planned schedule, nearly all Annual Meeting activities were included in one rate, and attendees did not need to commit to specific courses in advance. Courses were shortened to two-hour blocks rather than full-or half-day structures to accommodate better learning practices. The Vancouver Convention Center was leveraged to make the most of a series of new dynamic and interactive Experiential Learning opportunities that offered an alternative to typical didactic teaching methods. These changes and the increased value provided by the AANI were met with great acclaim by attendees and will be built upon for the 2017 meeting in Boston. The AAN presented its second Breakthroughs in Neurology conference, held in January in Phoenix. It drew 356 professional attendees excited to learn the "best of" clinical highlights, scientific breakthroughs, and other hot topics from the previous year. October's Fall Conference shattered previous attendance records, with 715 people converging in Las Vegas to enjoy a three-day immersion in neurology and practice management education programs. In the first year to offer all-inclusive registration to attendees, the attendance count was nearly 100 more than in 2015 and 80 people higher than the previous record year of 2013. The curriculum, networking opportunities, and exhibits all continued to grow for the popular conference. The third annual Sports Concussion Conference, offered in Chicago in July, attracted a record number of 481 professionals-20 percent more than in 2015. For the first time, the AANI was recognized by the Board of Certification, Inc., to offer continuing education for certified athletic trainers, which helped to strengthen the AANI's effort to create a meeting for all disciplines involved in the prevention, diagnosis, and treatment of sports concussion. The AANI also reached out to family physicians, pediatricians, and physical therapists regarding the conference devoted to the latest research findings and education on this too-common brain injury. The Academy significantly expanded its investment in research via the AAN Research Program, which includes funds from the AAN Institute, the American Brain Foundation, association partners, the pharmaceutical industry, and AAN members. The amount for 2016 was $2.6 million-an increase of $200,000 over 2015. Three new awards underscore the AAN's pledge to support all types of research across all career levels and discovery stages: the three-year, $450,000 Career Development Award, the two-year, $130,000 Neurology Research Training Scholarship, and the Future Clinical Researchers in Neurology and Neuroscience Scholarship, which offers to medical students/junior residents/junior fellows who are interested in a career in clinical research the possibility of receiving a $1,000 scholarship to reimburse expenses associated with attending the AAN Annual Meeting.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

Clinical Practice and Guidelines The AAN assists neurologists in making decisions regarding the diagnosis and treatment of their patients by creating guidelines that are considered the gold standard in evidence-based medicine. The Academy published six new guidelines and practice advisories in Neurology in 2016 and provided summaries for physicians and patients on these topics:

- * Practice Guideline: Treatment of Restless Legs Syndrome in Adults
- * Practice Advisory: The Utility of EEG Theta/Beta Power Ratio in ADHD Diagnosis
- * Practice Advisory: Recurrent Stroke with Patent Foramen Ovale (Update of Practice Parameter)
- * Practice Advisory: Etanercept for Poststroke Disability
- * Practice Guideline Update Summary: Botulinum Neurotoxin for the Treatment of Blepharospasm, Cervical Dystonia, Adult Spasticity, and Headache
- * Practice Guideline Update Summary: Corticosteroid Treatment of Duchenne Muscular Dystrophy

The Academy collaborated with the Mexican Academy of Neurology to produce English-to-Spanish translations of a select number of the AAN's clinical guidelines. These new Spanish translations are offered through the AAN's journal Neurology and join other AAN guidelines translated into Arabic, Chinese, Hungarian, Japanese, Korean, Polish, and Turkish. The AAN and American Brain Foundation collaborated with the National Football League Players Association (NFLPA) to develop a training video for concussion. The AAN/NFLPA joint press release received considerable media coverage. The video featured former NFL player and Super Bowl champion Ben Utecht, whose 2015 AAN public service announcement radio and TV spots continued to run on the air through 2016. Also, the AAN and its sports concussion guidelines were cited in a congressional hearing investigating concussions in athletics. The Academy's Axon Registry (R) ramped up throughout the year, expanding the number of cohorts and ticking off milestones, including acceptance as a qualified clinical data registry. This means registry data can be used in PQRS reporting-saving time and decreasing administrative burdens for neurologists. After a successful pilot phase, nearly 800 AAN member neurologists are participating and the milestone of one million patient records was reached faster than any other registry developed by the vendor. The Axon Registry will continue to grow in participation and the data will be used to inform quality improvement collaborations nationwide. As health care in the US has shifted to emphasize quality and outcomes of care, the AAN is instrumental in creating quality measures that neurologists and payers can use to assess effectiveness. New quality measures in 2016 included child neurology, essential tremor, inpatient and emergency care, neuro-oncology, neuro-otology, and updates of previous sets for Parkinson's disease, dementia, and stroke. The data provided by these measures can inform internal quality improvement, demonstrate quality care to payers and may lead to increased reimbursement while at the same time reducing costs raised by unnecessary or ineffective procedures. The outbreak of the Zika virus and its connection to increased instances of Guillain-Barré syndrome prompted the AAN to collaborate with the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention to develop educational materials for health care providers on the diagnosis, management, and treatment of Guillain-Barré syndrome. At the Annual Meeting, a Zika virus presentation was added to the Hot Topics Plenary Session and a press conference was held on the effects of the virus on the brain. With the strong urging of the AAN, Congress included in its continuing resolution $1.1 billion in funding to fight the virus.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Continuing Medical Education Programs Ever since the American Board of Psychiatry and Neurology (ABPN) mandated maintenance of certification (MOC), the AAN has supported members continually with tools and resources to help members successfully meet the requirements. Responding to member concerns about the costs involved, the Academy made most of its MOC resources free to members, and built upon that commitment in 2016 with additional offerings. To complement the live MOC preparation course the AAN has offered at conferences, an easy-to-access online Neurology MOC Prep Course was made available, giving members more access and the chance to earn up to 15 self-assessment CME credits, anytime and anywhere. Individuals attending the AAN Annual Meeting could attain 10 free self-assessment CME credits by using the NeuroSAE(R) Annual Meeting Edition to assess their knowledge in major clinical areas of neurology and then build their ideal itinerary from provided course suggestions. AANI produced two new modules for its performance improvement CME program: Chronic Opioid Therapy, Second Edition and Intracerebral Hemorrhage. Each module provides 20 CME credits and meets the MOC Part IV Clinical PIP requirement. A new Patient Safety course was added to NeuroLearn, designed to help neurologists address the ABPN's one-time requirement of diplomates to complete an approved patient safety course within three years prior to their board certification/recertification.
