Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Complete Streets Project - In partnership with FCAN Foundation, FCAN did public education and organizing on Complete Streets for St Pete. Complete Streets are streets designed for all road users, including people on foot, on bike or taking transit and can help address transportation and public health problems in St. Petersburg. We held "walk audits" with community members to illustrate problems and solutions in key areas, help bike rides to show examples of better conditions for cyclists, participated in numerous meetings and hearings on transportation, and set up a "parklet" as part of the city's Open Streets day, to show alternative uses for streets.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

Consumer Advocacy and Issue Public Education FCAN conducts consumer education on key issues including solar power, insurance, car buying, utilities, and similar issues. We communicate with members and the public in many ways including email alerts, a web site, a blog, Facebook page, phone calls, member outreach and Twitter feed. A major outlet for information is through the media including press releases, media briefings, editorial board meetings, letters to the editor, background discussions, and op eds. Insurance issues were the price and availability of homeowner insurance, life insurance issues, flood insurance, and other lines. We maintained a web page of information on auto buying, as well as a guide to buying life insurance. On utilities, FCAN fought for repeal of the so-called "nuke tax" -- a fee paid by consumers for power plants that weren't even constructed. We undertook a campaign to improve transportation alternatives in the Tampa Bay area through new transit options, and launched an effort to win new incentives for solar power.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Community Organizing and Membership Development Outreach to grassroots organizations, coalition meetings, town halls, and an annual membership meeting, leadership development, training, and research to support FCAN projects, maintenance of relationships with statewide media, contact with government bodies on FCAN issues FCAN maintains ongoing communications with many allied and affiliated organizations Issue work includes solar power, expansion of the health insurance coverage, tax reforms, and transportation issues Our Community Organizing includes membership development efforts which include canvassing, mail, and phone contacts with current and past members, as well as the public
