Form 990 (2016)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

As a newly formed medical research organization, Chan Zuckerberg Biohub Inc (the "Hub"), planned research will focus on several large scale scientific problems with a multi-year lifetime, with some projects focusing on basis science and some on clinical research. In addition, the Hub expects to conduct a number of smaller research programs, the most promising of which could form the basis for large-scale scientific programs that the hub will focus on in future years. Two of the large-scale projects will be the following: 1) The cell atlas will constitute a massive human cell type, cell state and genetic interaction map several orders of magnitude larger and higher dimension than all preceding efforts in model organisms, and will initially focus on cancer, neurological and cardiovascular functions. 2) The infectious disease project will utilize a multi-pronged approach to combat infectious disease, including the rapid development and deployment of genetic testing for infectious diseases, and both drug discovery and vaccine design efforts. In addition, the hub will fund complementary and cooperative research projects through the Chan/Zuckerberg investigators program and affiliate gift program.
