UU College of Social Justice The mission of the UUUSJ is to inspire and sustain faith-based activism for justice, on issues of local, national and global importance. We accomplish this through a variety of experiential learning programs. In fiscal year 2017 our programs included immersion learning journeys to the Arizona/Mexico border with BorderLinks, three different Nicaragua programs with Guardians of the Yaoska (religious leaders), Equal Exchange, and the Fundacion Entre Mujeres (FEM), Florida with the Coalition of Immokalee Workers, and West Virginia with the Southern Appalachian Labor School (SALS). Four of these programs were offered for youth groups. In addition to our immersion learning programs, we provided two experiential justice education programs for high school youth, called Activate! These week-long trainings occurred in Boston and in New Orleans, in addition, a one-day training for youth preceded General Assembly in New Orleans. We repeated our Grow Racial Justice training program for young adults (ages 19-34). 32 young adults - over half of them young adults of color - came to New Orleans for an intensive exploration of how our denomination can respond to the current challenges and opportunities of racial justice. Both Activate! and GROW continued with workshop tracks for General Assembly. Our internships for college age young adults placed 12 interns with justice organizations in the US and India, through the generosity of our donors we were able to support our interns with small stipends. We deepened their experience through a series of weekly vocational and spiritual reflections and supported them with chaplains drawn from our Program Leaders. We continued our skilled volunteer placements with UUSC partner RAICES in San Antonio, TX. We recruited, screened, placed and supported 25 volunteers with legal training and/or fluency in Spanish in cohorts April through June, and established a rotating practice that allows us to supply volunteers through the fall and into the winter. We were again supported in this important work through receptions, home stays and transportation assistance by volunteers from the First UU Church of San Antonio. All of our programs are supported by a justice learning framework, primarily the UUUSJ Study Guide for Cross-Cultural Engagement. They are led by staff and by our Program Leaders, who we support with a training and retreat each fall. Our current cadre of 21 Program Leaders includes 14 ministers, seminarians or Directors of Religious Education, 11 are people of color and 8 are fluent Spanish Speakers. We are in the process of recruiting a few additional Program Leaders interested in working with youth. UUUSJ is structured as a program unit of the UUSC, jointly governed by the UUA and UUSC for the benefit of both organizations under the terms of a joint operating agreement.

Part X, Line 2	UUSC accounts for the effect of any uncertain tax positions based on a "more likely than not" threshold to the recognition of the tax positions being sustained based on the technical merits of the position under scrutiny by the applicable taxing authority. If a tax position or positions are deemed to result in uncertainties of those positions, the unrecognized tax benefit is estimated based on a "cumulative probability assessment" that aggregates the estimated tax liability for all uncertain tax positions. UUSC has identified its tax status as a tax exempt entity and its determination of which income is related and unrelated as its only significant tax positions and has determined that such tax positions do not result in uncertainty requiring recognition. UUSC is not currently under examination by any taxing jurisdiction. UUSC's Federal and state income tax returns are generally open for examination for three years after the date of filing, including extensions.

990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Part I, Line 1	Powered by grassroots collaboration, UUSC works in eye-to-eye partnership with organizations around the world to foster justice and to create sustainable models for change within their own communities Our programmatic work - including grants, advocacy and strategic communications, and research - is organized into three areas of focus economic justice, environmental justice and climate action, and rights at risk In the past fiscal year, UUSC made 83 grants worth more than $1 6 million to grassroots partners working in 33 countries around the world Based upon data reported by our partners, the projects supported by UUSC over the course of the last fiscal year directly benefited approximately 80,000 individuals (a conservative estimate)

990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Part I, Management Comment regarding Year to Year comparison	(FY17 vs FY16) UUSC follows generally accepted accounting principles for revenue recognition and experienced an anomalous surge with $2.5m in pledges in FY15 at the peak of our highly successful UUSC Rising Campaign followed by $0.5m in pledges in FY16 and $0.1m in FY17. As a result of our successful UUSC Rising Campaign to fund new strategic initiatives, program expenses increased over $0.9m in FY16 and $0.6m in FY17. This activity explains the year to year differences seen in Part I on page 1 of the Form 990. Further information regarding UUSC Rising and our financial results is available by contacting UUSC at info@uusc.org

990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Part III, Line 4a	Rights at Risk UUSC's Rights at Risk Program addresses the needs of populations on the outer margins of society, who are traditionally excluded from mainstream aid responses. In situations of forced displacement, natural and man-made disasters, and gross violations of civil and political rights, UUSC works to restore, protect, and advance these rights through programs of social transformation and structural change. In addition to urgent responses to the Nepal earthquake and the refugee crisis in the Middle East/Europe, UUSC's ongoing rights at risk work focuses on confronting ethnic persecution of minorities in Burma, supporting efforts to uphold the rights of migrants from Central America who are seeking asylum in the United States, and advancing sexual orientation and gender identity rights in southern Africa. UUSC also has legacy programs related to rebuilding after the 2010 earthquake in Haiti and the 2013 typhoon in the Philippines. UUSC has 52 active rights at risk partners. Syrian Refugee Response UUSC's partners in southeastern Europe are working to strengthen protection and integration mechanisms for refugees fleeing violence and destabilization in the Middle East, particularly Syria. These partners are also operating in contexts rife with xenophobic nationalism that is pervasive throughout Europe. In the US, hostile attitudes toward refugees and Muslim immigrants - fueled by xenophobic political rhetoric and racist misconceptions - have presented a major obstacle over the past year to efforts to persuade the US to resettle Syrian refugees in numbers commensurate with its resources and claims to moral leadership. UUSC has therefore worked with grassroots partners in the US to support Syrian refugees and counteract negative stereotypes about Muslims and refugees. Sexual Orientation & Gender Identity Rights in Africa State-sanctioned homophobia is on the rise in Africa, fueled by religious fundamentalism and the financial support of anti-LGBTI hate groups in the West. Civil society dedicated to advancing SOGI rights in Africa is a relatively new and still highly stigmatized element of the human rights sector. While Western funding for SOGI work is plentiful in some areas, it tends to benefit top-down rights movements, at the expense of more innovative approaches that would prioritize changing public attitudes. Migrant Justice Pervasive violence, impunity, and lack of confidence in government capacity to confront the underlying systemic drivers of migration in Central America have continued unabated. This, combined with an increasingly sophisticated and well-developed system for apprehending, detaining, and deporting Central Americans in Mexico, means access to humanitarian protection for this population remains a pressing human rights concern. UUSC continued to address the criminalization of refugees fleeing violence in Guatemala, El Salvador, and Honduras by supporting partners in both the US and the Northern Triangle of Central America.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a	hat strengthen protection mechanisms, hold governments accountable for respecting the human rights of migrants, and demilitarize borders Philippines In the aftermath of the Typhoon Haiyan, UUSC partnered with local organizations on the ground to provide support to vulnerable populations, a key component of which consisted of trainings in trauma resiliency in order to improve the well-being of survivors as well as support for the rebuilding of livelihoods for those affected by the typhoon In February 2017, UUSC conducted an impact assessment in the Philippines In addition, according to data reported by our partners, UUSC-funded projects have thus far benefited (directly or indirectly) more than 52,000 individuals since 2013 That amounts to approximately $14 per beneficiary, and an average of approximately 1,300 beneficiaries per grant Haiti After Hurricane Matthew struck Haiti in October 2016, UUSC partnered with GARR, a Haitian-led organization with a long history of supporting displaced persons in Haiti, to help protect families forcibly removed from the Dominican Republic and now living in temporary shelters at the Anse-a-Pitres border, which were devastated in the storm UUSC targeted this particular population as a way to build on its work related to the denationalization crisis in the Dominican Republic, which has included advocacy campaigns aimed at influencing US policy as well as support for Zanmi Timoun, which is working at the Haiti-DR border in Belladere to assist recently deported unaccompanied minors In addition, for a third year, UUSC supported the continued construction of a school adjacent to the UUSC-supported eco-villages in Haiti's Central Plateau The school currently serves 172 students, 115 or so of whom are from the eco-villages With support from UUSC, MPP will build two additional classrooms this year, bringing the total number of classrooms to seven and allowing the school to serve students from pre-K through sixth grade in the next school year Nepal On April 25, 2015, a 7.8 magnitude earthquake killed nearly 9,000 people and injured approximately 23,000 in the Gorkha region of Nepal This earthquake occurred against a backdrop of a fraught nation-building process, as leaders struggle to develop a viable constitution that guarantees equal rights in a multi-ethnic country Protracted political instability and poor governance have plagued the rebuilding process Women, minorities, and children have been particularly vulnerable in the aftermath of the earthquake to violations of their human rights and have faced additional barriers to accessing relief and rehabilitation support UUSC's partners work to assist vulnerable communities by ensuring access to disaster relief and health services, training community members in trauma recovery and resilience, and safeguarding equitable education opportunities for traditionally marginalized children in earthquake-affected regions  Last year, we provided a total of 54 rig

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b	Environmental Justice & Climate Action This year, as part of a strategic decision to focus on the disproportionate impacts of a changing climate on the world's most vulnerable populations, UUSC's environmental justice & climate action launched a program aimed at protecting and defending the rights of people forcibly displaced by climate change in Alaska and in the South Pacific. To our knowledge, UUSC is currently the only funding organization supporting community-led and rights-based relocation strategies for communities experiencing the most severe impacts of climate change and who are at risk of being forcibly displaced. UUSC has twelve active environmental justice & climate action partners. Climate Forced Displacement UUSC recognizes the grave dangers that climate change impacts pose to the world's most vulnerable populations. Increasing temperatures and variable precipitation are intensifying natural disasters, melting glaciers, rising sea levels, intensifying droughts and causing widespread flooding. These climate impacts are increasing food and water insecurity, affecting natural resource-based economies and livelihoods and leading to mass displacement. These impacts disproportionately affect the most marginalized populations by multiplying their risks, widening inequalities and threatening their basic human rights and dignities. This reality has shaped UUSC's Environmental Justice & Climate Action program to focus on advancing and protecting the rights of marginalized populations who are at risk of forced displacement caused by slow-onset climate impacts. UUSC's program emboldens the principle of the right to self-determination by prioritizing building protections in place and when necessary and required by our partners, supporting communities to relocate with dignity. UUSC focuses on assisting indigenous populations of the South Pacific and Alaska-two distinct regions of the world that are highly susceptible to rising sea levels and climate induced natural disasters, and whose adaptive capacities are limited by their geographic isolation, their reliance on coastal resources and habitats, and their development limitations. We recognize that the limited adaptive capacities of these two regions are further heightened by the limited abilities of government institutions and policies to adequately respond to the multiple and ongoing issues that communities experience, and more importantly, the lack of human rights protections for people at risk of climate forced displacement. Therefore, UUSC aims to -Strategically strengthen the capacities of affected communities to organize and advocate for rights-based solutions and protection and -Support affected communities to build protections in place and to implement community-led relocation/migration in a way that respects and reinforces their rights and human dignities. Together, our partners cover six countries. By the end of 2017, we anticipate reaching a total of 18 countries. Our partners work o

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c	Economic Justice UUSC recognizes that workers' rights are human rights and works to improve the lives of the world's most marginalized and vulnerable workers. In the United States, we confront discrimination against low-income workers by supporting employee-led organizing through partnerships with worker centers. Internationally, we support small cooperatives in Central America and seek to protect the rights of women who work in Africa's massive informal economy. Informal Economy Workers in the informal economy are vulnerable to a number of violations of their rights, such as limited access to social protection, denial of labor rights, and lack of organization and representation, as well as lower pay than workers in the formal economy. According to the ILO "Few have secure work, most have low and erratic earnings and few are protected against loss of work and income" Additionally, "most operate outside the reach of government regulations and protection, and remain largely invisible in official statistics." Women, for whom the informal economy provides a key source of income and employment, are particularly vulnerable to these violations of their rights. Empowering workers in the informal economy, particularly women, through the provision of skills and rights trainings that not only inform them of their rights but ensure they are equipped to engage with local authorities to advocate for their rights and needs. Food Chain Workers Workers in the US food chain are vulnerable to a variety of rights abuses. While most fall into the "formal" sector category, they experience many abuses of their rights - ranging from wage theft, unsafe working conditions and discrimination, to retaliation for reporting workplace violations. Additionally, the food chain relies heavily on the use of immigrant workers. For a number of reasons, immigrant workers are especially vulnerable to these rights violations. Accordingly, it is critical to ensure that food chain workers are empowered to advocate for their rights so they can ensure that their employers are held accountable and that their rights are respected. UUSC has supported worker efforts to advocate for, and ensure, that their rights are respected through research to highlight the issues workers face, advocacy to effect changes in national, state, and corporate policies to ensure respect for worker rights, and promote new standards and/or monitoring methodologies that emphasize worker rights.  UUSC has fourteen active economic justice partners. Last year, we provided a total of 15 economic justice grants worth $245,000. Some of the highlights of our Economic Justice work over the past fiscal year include -Also in Nepal, following dialogue and continuous follow-up with government officials and community leaders, Economic Justice partner, Saathi, helped obtain electricity for 25 households. In Manohara district, for instance, electricity was approved for all houses in the community after rigorous follow-up and

The bill, known as the "Street Vending Modernization Act," has sixteen co-sponsors and several other Council Members have indicated that they would vote in favor of the bill if it were brought to the floor for a vote. -Since 2011, UUSC has supported Northwest Arkansas Workers' Justice Center's (NNAWJC) organizing and advocacy efforts to empower and protect poultry industry workers in Arkansas, with a particular focus on conditions in Tyson's plants in the state. In a major victory for NNAWJC, Tyson recently announced a number of changes to improve the pay, benefits, and working conditions for their employees across the country-a possible step in the right direction following years of advocacy and pressure from NNAWJC. The changes are designed to ensure that poultry workers are given a voice in the company, and that they benefit from improved safety, compensation, and transparency-all things the poultry workers care deeply about, and have been fighting for, for years.
