Name: For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology (FIRST)

Form 990 (2016)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

The FIRST Robotics Competition (FRC) directly served approximately 84,000 high school students on 3,357 teams Working with mentors, each team builds a robot in six weeks from a kit of common parts, designing it to meet this year's game challenge, "FIRST STEAMWORKS " Each team participated in one or more 2 to 3-day events at 145 locations, competing for awards for game scores, safety practices, teamwork and other qualitative achievements, stressing the values of cooperation and inclusion Award winning teams participated in an annual Championship event in either Houston, TX or St Louis, MO The FRC Program provided students with the experience of applying science and technology to achieve a specific challenge under a time constraint (Narrative continued on Schedule O, pg 184) This experience developed students' technical skills, teamwork and the ability to deal with the satisfactions and disappointments of a real engineering project Participation in FRC has inspired many students to go on to college, pursuing careers in science, technology, engineering, and math Many FRC coaches and mentors work in these fields and help the students develop bonds within their communities and connections to the workforce development pipeline Students in the FRC program are eligible for college scholarships through the FIRST Scholarship Program

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

The FIRST LEGO League (FLL) reached approximately 245,000 students aged 9-16, on 30,540 teams in 78 countries The year's challenge was called "Animal Allies " Teams worked on game challenges using LEGO Mindstorms technology, applying science and engineering to identify a problem when people and animals interact, design a solution that makes the interaction better for animals, people, or both, and share the problem and solutions with others In April 2017, teams from around the world met in either Houston, TX or St Louis, MO for the FLL World Festival competition and celebration The FIRST LEGO League Junior (FLL Jr) program served over 64,000 students aged 6-9, on 10,601 teams through a web-based game challenge called "Creature Craze " (Narrative continued on Schedule O, pgs 184-185) Participation in FLL and FLL Jr has engaged students in a comprehensive experience developing confidence in their ability to address serious issues, enhancing their education in science and math, and exposing them to a STEM career By progressing through each program and ultimately to FRC, students gain a full suite of technical skills and ongoing encouragement, making it more likely that they will pursue careers in science, technology, engineering and math

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

The FIRST Tech Challenge (FTC) served approximately 52,000 youths from ages 12-18 on 5,227 teams Like the FRC Program, FTC is a design and build experience, but uses a smaller kit and less complicated game challenge In this year's game, "Velocity Vortex," each team built a robot and participated in a regional tournament FTC provides an experience similar to the FRC Program, but is more readily accessible to a broader audience of educators and students, in part because of its lower cost The FTC experience simulates the excitement as well as the pressure of a real-life engineering project, developing not only the students' technical know-how, but also leadership, cooperation, ability to plan, patience, and teamwork (Narrative continued on Schedule O, pg 185) Like the FRC Program, FTC enriches the participating students' ability to deal with the satisfactions and disappointments of a real engineering project The FTC experience expands students' interest in science, technology, engineering and math, and inspires many to go on to a higher education Like the FRC participants, students in the FTC program are eligible for some of the college scholarships through the FIRST Scholarship Program By progressing through each program and ultimately FRC, students gain a full suite of technical skills and ongoing encouragement, making it more likely that they will pursue careers in science and technology Award winning teams participated in an annual World Championship event in either Houston, TX or St Louis, MO
