Postsecondary and Transitions to WorkThe Postsecondary and Transitions to Work Program Area seeks to make higher education and the opportunities it affords more equitable. College degree attainment is a key lever for reducing our nation's rising income inequality. Data show that adults with a bachelor's degree earn a wage premium of $27,000 compared to those with only a high school diploma. These figures are even more dramatic for traditionally underrepresented groups. In concert with a host of other social policies, improving our ability to move students into and through college is a big part of solving our income inequality crisis. Colleges and universities need to do a better job at shoring up the multiple pathways that lead to a degree. This includes strengthening the mechanism that gets students to the college's doors either for the first time or for returning students and ensuring that those who start a course of study successfully complete. Public policy also plays an essential role in establishing smoother transitions from K-12 to college and the workforce, closing achievement gaps, improving college affordability, reducing the overall time to degree, and ensuring that full-time employment allows for career flexibility and upward mobility. These are the types of issues our program area will tackle through research and policy development. CommunicationsThe Opportunity Institute's Communications team works to translate sound policy research into clear, concise communications and messages that will reach and resonate with policymakers, the general public and key stakeholders. Through a combination of targeted online communications, traditional media activities, and social media campaigns, the Communications team supports the policy and research activities of The Opportunity Institute's program teams with robust communications and messaging strategies.

Form 990 (2016)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

The Strong Families & Early Learning Program Area supports families with young children through policy research, development and advocacy, public education and action campaigns that support positive parent engagement, and coalition work. Research shows that the earliest years of life are critical to a child's long-term success, but dramatic changes to the workforce have left families facing more stress and demands on their time than ever before. We give parents and communities tools to foster early brain and language development, and advance policies focused on nurturing environments, high quality child care, early learning, and supportive workplace practices.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

The Opportunity & Justice Program Area builds avenues to social mobility for individuals, families and communities impacted by mass incarceration. Millions of Americans are enmeshed in the criminal justice system, half of them are parents of minor children and all of them deserve a chance to succeed. We build pathways away from criminal justice and toward educational success, career entry, and family security.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

The P-12 Equity and Excellence Program Area provides infrastructure for new and existing efforts aiming to improve student outcomes through strong policies and practices for students, teachers, schools, families, communities. While the bulk of our activity is encompassed by the Partners for Each and Every Child project described below, we are also building cross-sector strategies and alignment across workforce, higher education, health, and justice.
