Form 990 (2016)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

United Way's Community Investment Process funds programs that improve conditions for individuals and families. All programs must address one of United Way's four priority areas: Basic Needs (food, shelter, clothing), Income (having enough money to pay for today's necessities and save a little for tomorrow), Education (supporting children and youth and ensuring they graduate from high school on time, ready for college or to join the workforce), and Health (ensuring children and adults are healthy and able to be productive at school and/or work). We believe these four priority areas are the building blocks for a good life. Through the generous contributions of local donors, we fund local programs that promote collaboration, efficiency, innovation and accountability. Annually, more than 70 volunteers who represent a cross-section of the community, form nine teams for the purpose of evaluating each program requesting funds. This evaluation is based on a written application and a site visit. The key criteria in the evaluation are: 1) does the program meet a community need, 2) does the program achieve results for the people it serves, and 3) does it demonstrate good stewardship (in both financial accountability and organizational management/governance). For the 2017 fiscal year, United Way had 29 Community Partners and funded 58 programs. The programs funded by United Way served more than 100,000 persons in the Chattahoochee Valley. Below are several selected outcomes that demonstrate the results achieved through investing in United Way: - 914 children, or 85.2% participating in targeted intervention for reading/math improved their skill level - 90 (100%) children with developmental needs and disabilities maintained or enhanced their growth and development because of activities that targeted skill development, growth and socialization - 1,142 children, or 80% of those who are at-risk and participate in a United Way funded after-school program, improved academics and advanced to the next grade level - 5,181 youth, or 82% served, will demonstrate healthy lifestyle choices, improve decision making and social interaction and/or avoid at-risk behavior - 582 children who have been physically and/or sexually abused received supportive services that decreased the trauma experienced by the child victim and improved their physical and emotional health - An average of 1,753 children in need received a hot, nutritious meal after school in their neighborhood at churches, agencies and housing authority communities. Children also benefitted from having volunteers read to them, engaging in arts and crafts activities, and having access to computers in a learning center to help them complete homework assignments.
