Part I, Line 2	The School's financial aid program is a need-based program as evaluated by the financial aid department and independent school management's system, School and Student Services("SSS") The financial aid committee at the School reviews this evaluation and makes financial aid awards based on the level of need and the available financial aid funds The committee considers total income, assets, number of dependents, provisions for retirement, and extraordinary expenses in assessing a family's ability to pay educational expenses While the committee usually tries to meet 100% of the needs as determined by "SSS," it does expect that every family contribute to the child's tuition and school expenses in some way The School also assists families receiving financial aid by providing them used books for a discounted price and discounts on optional field trips and activities
