College in Olympia, WA. The day was filled with workshops, panel discussions, presentations, and networking opportunities. Each year, attendees and organizations, often numbering in the hundreds, come together through various Peace Works events to explore and develop concrete strategies for pursuing justice, peace, and progressive social change.

Foreign Grant: Yes

Academic Scholarships The foundation grants an annual scholarship to a student at The Evergreen State College in the US and is formalizing support for Palestinian women attending Birzeit University in the West Bank as funds allow. The students, their schools, families, and community are all impacted by these grants.

Foreign Grant: No

Samira Project: The foundation partnered with The Middle East Children's Alliance to provide psychosocial counseling for one year for 150 of Rafah's economically disadvantaged and learning-disabled children, ages seven to twelve. The project provided professional guidance and trained families to better support these children.

Grants: $ 2,000

Expenses: $ 2,372

Engagement with Government Officials: Although the work was done by unpaid volunteers, RCF supported initiatives to educate both elected and appointed government officials about Middle East issues and related issues of free speech. This included cosponsoring financial support to Friends of Sabeel North America for No Child Behind Bars. This grassroots lobbying event in Seattle educated the public, who in turn advocated with their members of Congress to stop financial support for Israel's incarceration of Palestinian children.

Hundreds of volunteers and government officials were engaged or impacted by these efforts.

Part V, Line 35 The Rachel Corrie Foundation for Peace and Justice holds public forums, lectures, and conferences from time to time and also periodically attends the functions of other groups to educate the public on peace and justice issues. At these events, the foundation often has a table with brochures and other literature about the organization and about various peace and justice issues. In addition, to educating the public about the economy of the Middle East and to attract people to our table for free information, we often sell olive oil products raised by small farmers in the West Bank and art and embroidery made by individuals in the Middle East and sold on a fair trade basis. We also carry several books related to peace and justice issues. We ask that the public pay for these more expensive items, since the foundation does not have the resources to give them away. Most sales are made away from the foundation's office by unpaid volunteers. While gross profit from this activity ($3,372) is above $1,000, the activity is exempt from tax both because it is related to the foundation's exempt purpose and because the sales are substantially conducted by unpaid volunteers. "Any trade or business in which substantially all the work is performed for the organization without compensation isn't an unrelated trade or business."
