Form 990 - Organization's Mission

Promote the field of sociology of religion through an annual professional meeting in August, the publication of an academic journal "Sociology of Religion," the maintenance of a website (www.sociologyofreligion.com), and the awarding of competitive grants to fund promising research projects.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4d - All Other Accomplishment

Every year, the Executive Council of the Association decides how much money it wants to allocate to the Joseph H Fichter Research Grants for the upcoming year. Using this dollar figure, the Joseph Fichtner Award Committee, which is composed of at least 3 members, evaluates the applications based on their quality and whether they meet the eligibility criteria. The committee's selections are then communicated to the Executive Officer, who in turn distributes the funding to the research offices at the grantee's college or university. Upon completion of the research the research officer of the grantee's college or university must provide the Association for the Sociology of Religion with a Final Expense Report detailing how the funds were spent and certifying with a signature that the expenditures are correct.
