Form 990 (2017)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Housing - New Yorkers face a real affordable housing crisis. Over the past decade, rents have increased at twice the rate of our incomes, while we remain at the mercy of greedy landlords who increase rent as they see fit. As a member of statewide coalitions like Upstate/Downstate Alliance, and citywide coalitions the Alliance for Tenant Power NYCOFI is working with and on behalf of tenants throughout New York. Our coalitions bring together tenant organizations, homelessness advocacy groups and other community stakeholders to educate tenants on their rights, understand and articulate the causes of the current housing and homelessness and take action to win housing justice for all.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

Workers Rights - America has become a nation of the overworked and the underpaid, and in no city is that truer than New York especially for our immigrant and communities of color. From being at the forefront of the Paid Sick Days fight to igniting the Fight for $15 campaign to raise the state minimum wage, workplace justice sits at the core of our work. Through our Uber Troubles campaign against the gig economy and job automation, the Committee for Better Banks, and more, we stand with fast food workers, supermarket workers, carwashers, day care providers, bank workers, all low-wage workers and their right to a living wage and to unionize without retaliation.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Long Island Organizing - Long Island is one of the most segregated regions in the United States and it is also one the most expensive places in the country, even surpassing New York City. In fact, Long Island was founded on the principle of exclusion that reverberates today. Low income communities of color face an uphill battle to find quality jobs and housing. Furthermore, the schools charged with educating the next generation of students of color are among the worst quality in the state of New York. Through research, popular education and community organizing NYCOFI seeks to make Long Island more equal and make a positive impact on low and middle income communities and engage local resident in community activities ranging from non-partisan GOTV canvassing to gardening in our community garden.
