Public support of EWB-I in 2017 was 15% as a result of a few generous donors. There are over 65 membership organizations representing different countries. Thirty-one of the membership associations are full members and the remaining are start-ups. Full members are required to have active and verifiable projects; participate in EWB-I platform of coordination, collaboration and mutual partnerships; and must be incorporated with a national status in its own region. Start-ups receive mentoring from full-members and share in the vision and mission of EWB-I. The Board is composed of representatives from nine countries. United States, United Kingdom, Australia, India, Macedonia, Canada, Rwanda, South Africa and Cameroon. Each of the board members is actively involved in projects in their communities which have broad appeal to persons with common interests. In 2017, 45 participants from 20 different member associations gathered for the third EWB Global Forum to discuss: "formation of a global engineer", a topic which is one of the main goals of the organization's mission statement. EWB-I has continuously maintained its duty to stay true to fulfilling its mission.
