Name: Society for Mathematical Biology

Form 990 (2017)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

The Society publishes a highly regarded scientific journal, "The Bulletin of Mathematical Biology" There are 12 issues each year available both online and in paper editions The Society pays the publisher for subscriptions for all members The publisher remits royalty payments to the Society based on the income generated from the Bulletin These royalty payments provide the Society with funds used to provide travel support for students participating in the Society's annual conference and other Mathematical Biology related meetings The Society also uses some funds to provide honoraria to plenary speakers at the annual conference and support conference travel of its officers, board members, and presenters

Form 990, Part III, Line 4b:

The Society held its annual conference in Salt Lake City, UT attended by over 400 participants including Society members and students. The annual conference provides an opportunity for Mathematical and Biological scientists to interact in a congenial atmosphere. Basic conference expenses are covered by participant registration fees. The Society paid expenses associated with student travel awards, presentation awards, and travel support for Society officers, board members and committee chairs.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

The Society provided financial support to members to attend numerous Mathematical Biology oriented conferences both within the United States and internationally. The Society has an International Grants Program designed with the goal to promote and facilitate the organization of and attendance at mathematical biology meetings and courses in countries experiencing financial need.
