CONFLICT OF INTEREST POLICY MONITORING & ENFORCEMENT	FORM 990, PART VI, LINE 12C USP's conflict of interest policy is reflected in its bylaws and in its code of ethics. This policy is implemented with respect to our employees and volunteers (members of the board of trustees and the council of experts and expert committees, USP's standard setting bodies) through specific provisions in the employee handbook, the rules of business practice for the board of trustees, and the rules and procedures of the council of experts. All trustees, members of the council of experts and expert committees, and employees in director level or above positions or positions where they work with expert committees are required to submit and keep current a disclosure statement identifying any conflict of interest. For USP's volunteers, a conflict of interest is defined broadly under the bylaws to include a financial interest in a company or any other relationship or interest that could interfere with the individual's ability to exercise independent judgment. Trustees, experts and employees are required to recuse themselves from any matter in which they have a potential conflict, and employees may also be required to divest themselves of interests that present a potential conflict. At each meeting of the board and all expert committees, the chair reminds members of the conflict of interest rules. The identification and resolution of conflicts of interest is handled as follows for USP employees and volunteers. Employees Disclosure statements are collected annually by the Global Compliance and Ethics Department from employees at the director level and above or who otherwise holds a position in which the employee actively participates in the standards-setting process. If an employee discloses that he or she has a financial interest above the specified threshold, the Vice President, Global Compliance and Ethics reviews the interest with the CEO. If the CEO determines that the interest is an isolated one and one that would be difficult to divest (e.g., a retirement plan from a former employer, or a spouse's employment), the employee is allowed to retain the interest but must recuse himself/herself in any situation where there is a potential conflict. In other cases, such as where there are multiple interests above the threshold, the CEO may ask the employee to divest. Members of the Board of Trustees Disclosure statements are collected by the secretary, and the board members have an obligation to update them as necessary to keep them current. If a board member has a potential conflict, then in accordance with the bylaws he or she must recuse himself/herself from any final deliberation and vote in the matter. Council of Experts and Expert Committee Members Disclosure statements are collected by the executive secretariat, and members have an obligation to update them as necessary to keep them current. The chair of each expert committee, working with staff (scientific liaison/executive secretariat), has responsibility for resolving
