Part III Statement of Program Service AccomplishmentsCheck if Schedule O contains a response or note to any line in this Part III ☒1 Briefly describe the organization's mission

At JDRF, we work tirelessly to accelerate breakthroughs to cure, prevent and treat type 1 diabetes (T1D). We continually expand our scientific knowledge, our connections and collaborations, our partners and global presence to unlock the science that will stop T1D. While we fight for a cure, we strive just as hard to develop therapies to help people right now. JDRF and our scientists are leading T1D research around the world. We address key gaps to move research faster and farther across the development pipeline and to translate breakthroughs into new therapies for people with T1D. This enables us to advance science with the most potential and to drive research that attracts more resources and scientific expertise to the field. We invest in the early stages, allowing researchers to pursue innovative ideas and approaches that will lead to breakthrough treatments. JDRF also works to drive new therapies and technologies to market so they get into the hands of people with T1D more quickly.

To attract and retain top scientific and executive talent to advance its mission, the organization pays competitive and appropriate salaries as determined by analysis of reliable data and input from independent third-party consultants. The review of JDRF executive compensation and benefits under the procedures noted above is completed annually by an independent Compensation Committee, and the basis for their determination is documented contemporaneously in the minutes of the Committee's meetings, including most recently on June 20, 2018.

PART III STATEMENT OF PROGRAM SERVICE ACCOMPLISHMENTS	LINE 4A ($84,651,980) RESEARCH GRANTS JDRF has played a significant role in nearly every T 1D therapeutic advance of the past four decades. We have more than 500 active T1D research grants funded in the United States and 19 other countries around the world - more than 150 grants in 2018 alone. Additionally, seventy-five JDRF-funded clinical trials are currently under way. The full impact of JDRF's research investment extends well beyond direct funding. JDRF leverages partnerships with academia, industry and clinicians to accelerate the most promising research opportunities. Accomplished experts and leaders in the field of T 1D science and medicine guide the organization's funding efforts in the United States and around the world. Our highest priority is developing a cure for T1D and its complications. As we increase our understanding of the causes of T1D, we will also uncover ways to prevent them from occurring. At the same time, we're focused on developing better therapies to help people with T1D live healthier lives today. The foundation's diversified research portfolio includes the following therapy areas: Artificial Pancreas Artificial pancreas (AP) systems use technology to replicate the operation of a normal human pancreas and are one of the most revolutionary advances in diabetes care since the discovery of insulin. JDRF has been pivotal in developing and pursuing AP systems, and has transformed the field in less than 10 years by working closely with numerous partners, researchers and companies to overcome the challenges that had prevented AP technology from moving forward. Today, JDRF's Artificial Pancreas Program is working to advance next-generation technology that is small, user-friendly and accurate, so that people with T1D can get through the day without needing to check blood sugar levels or dose insulin as often. These systems link continuous glucose monitors and insulin pumps to smart software so that the right amount of insulin is delivered at the right time. Our advocacy efforts, for instance, helped shave years off the regulatory approval process for the first Artificial Pancreas system, now on the market. Beta Cell Regeneration The JDRF Beta Cell Regeneration Program aims to find and develop treatments to maintain the health and function of insulin-producing beta cells - and to develop therapies to generate new ones. The creation of the Network for Pancreatic Organ Donors with Diabetes, or nPOD, a JDRF initiative, helped uncover the opportunities of beta cell regeneration. Beta Cell Replacement The JDRF Beta Cell Replacement program focuses on creating and then placing new insulin-producing beta cells back in the body, potentially allowing people with T1D to live years, even decades, without glucose monitoring and insulin injections. Complications Despite advances in glucose control, many people with T1D are still at risk of developing serious kidney, eye, heart and nerve diseases. JDRF's Complications Program focuses on eye

Glucose Control: Even with today's technology, maintaining tight glucose control can be challenging. Our Glucose Control Program is driving clinical trials and breakthrough solutions to make the management of glucose easier and to keep people with T1D healthier. Immunotherapies: In people with T1D, the immune system mistakes the body's own cells for dangerous invaders and targets the pancreas' insulin-producing beta cells. As a result of beta cell death, people with T1D depend on external insulin to survive. Our approach through JDRF's Immunotherapies Program is to disable overactive immune assassins, boost "good" cells that can control and inhibit the killer cells, and restore immune control. Prevention: The JDRF Prevention Program works to eliminate the threat of T1D from future generations - and translate research knowledge into therapies that can stop T1D from developing. Until we have found ways to prevent T1D, we must stop or slow its progression during its earliest stages. Our approach is to expand T1D screening, delay the onset of T1D, and develop a vaccine. For more information on these scientific initiatives, visit jdrf.org/research. The JDRF T1D Fund (www.t1dfund.org), a wholly owned subsidiary of JDRF, is a venture philanthropy fund accelerating life-changing solutions to treat, prevent and cure T1D through catalytic commercial investments. Through its investments in partnership with private capital, including venture capital, pharma and foundations, the T1D Fund seeks to attract the private investment necessary to advance drugs, devices, diagnostics, and vaccines to help people living with T1D or at risk of developing the disease. The T1D Fund invests in opportunities that drive our mission, with an exclusive focus on the best commercial opportunities. All funds go directly to support companies developing approaches to treat, prevent and cure T1D. In accordance with GAAP, $11.3MM of the T1D Fund's total investments as of June 30, 2018 are reflected in the Balance Sheet (Part X) and not included within the organization's research-related mission expense. LINE 4B ($23,138,667) RESEARCH SUPPORT: JDRF's in-house team of skilled and credentialed scientific, policy and government relations professionals play critical roles in leading and supporting the research strategy and distribution of research funds from JDRF - and our partner organizations - to create a world without T1D. Our professionals identify, evaluate and influence groundbreaking research funded by JDRF, other foundations, governments and industry to accelerate the mission we all share. JDRF professionals work with regulatory and policy officials to ensure research can proceed without delay and that research results are well understood by healthcare decision makers. As part of these efforts, JDRF organizes and funds scientific meetings, symposia, and conferences to review research proposals, ensure
