Name: Rhode Island Center for Justice

Form 990 (2017)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

During this fiscal year the Rhode Island Center for Justice continued to provide free legal assistance to low-income Rhode Islanders and expanded into additional areas of critical need including the representation of public-school students to support their educational and constitutional rights and the representation of incarcerated individuals to protect against violations of their civil rights. The Rhode Island Center for Justice also became an active participant in The Immigrant Coalition, a group of over thirty organizations assisting immigrants to understand their rights and get support for their children. In the six core areas of advocacy housing, employment, utilities, education, civil rights and support to immigrants, Center for Justice staff again directly assisted hundreds of households through a range of legal services including brief advice and counsel, pre-litigation advocacy, and representation in administrative and court proceedings. Through these programs the Center for Justice obtained significant relief for low-income Rhode Islanders including needed repairs of unsafe and unhealthy rental housing conditions, alternate housing for tenants affected by condemnation of property, extended stability of housing through rent abatements and extension of tenancy in the face of potential eviction, recovery of earned but unpaid wages, prevention of utility shut offs, and protection of student rights in the public school setting. Beyond individual representation, the Center for Justice secured increased discounts on utility rates for all low-income utility consumers in Rhode Island and has mounted challenges to the adequacy of public education and the constitutionality of solitary confinement for individuals with mental illness under the U.S. Constitution. In furtherance of our mission to train and support those who wish to pursue a career in public interest law we have continued to serve as a host site and training opportunity for interns, externs and Fellows, including undergraduates, graduate students, law students and law graduates. This work is undertaken in partnership with Roger Williams University School of Law and law students and graduates of the law school are an integral part of the Rhode Island Center for Justice.

Name: Rhode Island Center for Justice

Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Part X, Line 2	The Center is exempt from federal income taxes under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code and applicable state law. The accounting standard on accounting for uncertainty in income taxes addresses the determination of whether tax benefits claimed or expected to be claimed on a tax return should be recorded in the financial statements. Under this guidance, the Center may recognize the tax benefit from an uncertain tax position only if it is more likely than not that the tax position will be sustained on examination by taxing authorities, based on the technical merits of the position. Examples of tax positions include the tax-exempt status of the Center and various positions related to the potential sources of unrelated business taxable income (UBIT). The tax benefits recognized in the financial statements from such a position are measured based on the largest benefit that has a greater than 50 percent likelihood of being realized upon ultimate settlement. There were no unrecognized tax benefits identified or recorded as liabilities for years ending June 30, 2018.
