Form 990 (2017)

Form 990, Part III, Line 4a:

Seattle University, founded in 1891, is a Jesuit Catholic university and law school located on 50 acres in Seattle's Capitol Hill neighborhood. More than 7,200 students are enrolled in undergraduate and graduate programs within eight schools and colleges. In the academic year 2017-18, the University enrolled 7,291 students and awarded 1245 bachelor's degrees or equivalents, 187 post-baccalaureates, 812 master's degrees, 17 post-master's certificates, and 229 professional degrees. Awards and high rankings for academic rigor, sustainability, community service, and social justice are among Seattle University's touchstones of excellence. One of them is a Presidential Award from the White House for community service, a recognition received by only five universities. Here's a look at many of the honors bestowed on the university. Seattle University is among the best colleges and universities in the nation for producing successful graduates, investing in the student experience and fostering student success, according to The Wall Street Journal/Times Higher Education College 2018 Ranking. The rankings highlighted the top 200 institutions among 1,000 it reviewed nationwide. Seattle University is one of the top universities in the West, according to U.S. News & World Report. Best Colleges 2018. The university ranks seventh for its full range of undergraduate, Master's and select doctoral degree programs. The university consistently has earned a spot in the West's top 10 for 18 years. For the 18th year in a row, Seattle University is one of the top universities in the West, according to U.S. News & World Report. Best Colleges 2019. Nationally, Seattle U ranks #26 for Best Engineering Schools. Its undergraduate business program continued to be among the top in the Northwest with its accounting and finance programs in the top 5 nationally. In the West, Seattle U is #4 in best colleges for veterans. Three Albers School of Business and Economics graduate programs achieved high rankings. The Executive MBA program is #11 in the nation and is the top-ranked EMBA program in the Northwest. It consistently ranks in the Top 25 by U.S. News. The accounting program was tied for #1 in the Northwest and #14 in the nation. It, too, has been consistently ranked in the U.S. News Top 25. Additionally, the part-time Professional MBA ranks #2 in the Northwest and #75 in the country. The School of Law's Legal Writing program ranked #1 by U.S. News for several years running, again took the top spot in the nation. The clinical training program is tied for #18 nationally and is the only one in the Northwest to achieve the distinction of being in the Top 20. The part-time JD degree program is one of only two Northwest programs to make the top 25 list in the nation. Additionally, the School of Law is among the most diverse in the country. The Fiske Guide to College Consulted by millions of prospective students and their families, the selective guide highlights the "best and most interesting schools" in the U.S., Canada, and Great Britain to be included and Seattle University is among them. The guide is compiled by former New York Times education editor Edward Fiske, a leading independent voice in college admissions. Colleges of Distinction, a college guide that takes into account the success of graduates, the quality of teaching, graduation rates, class size, and campus atmosphere, features Seattle University in its latest edition. High school college counselors nominate colleges and universities for inclusion in the national guide. Fewer than half of those considered are selected to be in the guide. Catholic Colleges of Distinction also showcases Seattle University among those schools that excel at four distinctions: engaged students, great teaching, vibrant communities, and successful outcomes. College Factual ranks Seattle University in the top 5% in the nation for successfully delivering an education in liberal arts/science and humanities with graduates among the top earners in the U.S. Starting wages rival those of new graduates from elite Ivy League schools, according to College Factual, which challenges the status quo to help prospective students make better decisions about college. Seattle University ranked #1 among private universities nationwide for increasing graduation rates and closing gaps between Hispanic and Caucasian students. The report came from The Education Trust, which also ranked Seattle University #2 for increasing the overall graduation rate of Hispanic students by 31.7 percent during a six-year period (2004-10). Seattle University is the only private school in Washington State among the top 25 with increased Hispanic graduation rates and the only Jesuit school in the nation to make the list. The National Science Foundation Graduate Research Fellowship, prestigious multi-year funding program, supports graduate-level researchers in the physical and social sciences. Nine Seattle University students have been selected in the past decade. In 2012, the White House honored Seattle University with the Presidential Award for community service, the highest recognition by the federal government to a college or university for its civic engagement, service learning, and volunteerism. The university was one of only five universities in the nation to receive this honor and the only university cited as a Promise Neighborhoods recipient for coordinated, wrap-around, youth-focused service that supports the educational and social needs of youth. A Seattle Times editorial called out the award and noted, "Seattle University serves as a national example of the difference higher education can make on its neighbors." Then again in 2015-Seattle University set a precedent by earning national recognition for the third consecutive year, making the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll with distinction. The accolade acknowledges the university's overall commitment to service as well as its significant work to implement the Seattle University Youth Initiative, which unites the university and wider community in a long-term commitment to building a better future for young people starting with pre-kindergarten and continuing through college. In 2015, Seattle University once again was honored by the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll in the following areas: Interfaith community service - one of four finalists for the top award in this category, general community service - honor roll with distinction, education - honor roll, and economic opportunity - honor roll. Among master's universities, Seattle University ranks in the top 5 in the nation for the number of staff supporting community service, the number of academic courses that incorporate service as well as scholarships for community service, according to Washington Monthly. Washington Monthly also included Seattle University in its top 10 based on the number of alumni who go on to serve in the Peace Corps, relative to school size. 15 alumni served in the Peace Corps worldwide in 2014, SU tied for sixth. A total of 357 SU alumni have served since the Peace Corps began in 1961. Four out of five Seattle University undergraduate students serve the community through volunteer activities, internships, and professional development. In all, students contribute more than 132,000 hours of volunteer service annually, with an economic value of more than $3.6 million. Eighty percent of Seattle U undergraduates take a course with a service-learning component at some point during their time at the university. Seattle University's students volunteer at more than three times the national average. A major focus of service is the Seattle University Youth Initiative, a pipeline of support for the success of young people starting in pre-kindergarten and continuing through college. The initiative's first effort is its long-term commitment to improving the academic achievement of low-income youth in the Bailey Gatzert neighborhood just south of campus. Seattle University achieved a Gold rating for sustainability from the Association for the Advancement of Sustainability in Higher Education's (AASHE) 2018 Sustainability Tracking, Assessment & Rating System (STARS). SU is ranked #3 nationally for its sustainability curriculum in AASHE's

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Part VI, Section B, Line 12c	The Conflict of Interest Policy for Trustees is contained in the Bylaws of the University. Trustees are informed of this policy during Trustee orientation and the annual meeting. On an annual basis, each Trustee is asked to furnish a written statement indicating whether he or she is involved in any matter that poses an actual or potential conflict of interest. Trustees are expected to update the disclosure throughout the year as may be appropriate. After a trustee's disclosure of a potential financial or other conflicts of interest, the chair of the Board of Trustees, in consultation with the University Counsel, determines whether the situation constitutes a conflict of interest requiring action by the Board. If the chair of the Board believes Board action is appropriate, the interested person must leave the Board meeting where the financial or other interest is discussed and voted upon, unless requested to stay either to respond to questions or provide information to the Board on the matter under discussion. The remaining board members decide if a conflict of interest exists and the appropriate course of action. Officers, key employees, faculty, and staff are covered by the University conflict of interest policy. Individuals are informed of this policy at the time of hire. The policy is contained in the Human Resources Policy Manual and is available to faculty and staff on the University's website. Upon identification of a potential conflict of interest, the matter is reviewed and evaluated by University officials and a determination is made regarding appropriate action.
