The area serviced is primarily Park County, Montana, an economically depressed and rural area near Yellowstone National Park. Many residents live at or below poverty level. The mission has evolved and expanded as more specific needs have been identified.

Community programs continue to be developed to address these needs. Some of these programs provide meals to seniors and schoolchildren. The organization works with other local nonprofits and vendors to provide fresh locally sourced food to improve the nutrient value of foods distributed to pantry clients, and to support local farmers and ranchers. Another program provides training in culinary arts to prepare individuals for employment as restaurant and institution cooks.

More than 950 individuals, foundations and other nonprofits support the organization annually. In 2012, the organization secured funding of more than $250,000 to purchase land for a new building in downtown Livingston. Additional funds of more than one million dollars were raised in 2013 to complete the building and purchase equipment. In addition to the Food Pantry operations and support for community programs, the building provides public meeting space and a commercial community kitchen. This further serves the mission in providing a licensed, well-equipped kitchen for local entrepreneurs to use to start or expand their business operations.

Donations do more than simply alleviate hunger - they make possible the evolving programs that identify and provide long-term, effective solutions that address specific needs, as well as tackle the issues of economic development, health care and education. Park County has recently suffered the loss of several government assistance programs, so the work being done by this organization is more vital than ever.

Food Pantry

During 2018, the Food Pantry provided food and supplies to approximately 700 people in need each month. Efforts are made to treat all "customers" with respect in a grocery store setting. The staff strive to identify other needs, and provide information as to additional resources available from either this organization or others in the community. In-kind donations of food and supplies are received from local grocery stores as well as individuals. Other food and supplies are purchased at wholesale prices. More than 85% of the food distributed is purchased with donated funds. Matching grants are utilized. Bulk foods are often processed in the commercial kitchen to provide nutritious fresh food to be distributed in the Food Pantry or through the various community programs. Donations/grants are received from individuals, foundations, and local churches. The Food Pantry even addresses issues with special products for new mothers, pets, and persons with special dietary needs such as seniors.

Community Programs

A variety of programs have been developed as needs are identified within the community. The organization determined that more than 300 low income elderly persons in the area required food assistance. In response, the organization prepares more than 300 meals per week that are delivered to seniors by volunteers. A Community Garden has been established. The Healthy Weekend program provides supplemental weekend food to 250 local children who qualify for free and reduced price meals each Friday at the school. Kids Cooking Camp helps youngsters learn to self-prepare healthy meals. Breakfast is provided daily to students in need at a local rural school, serving approximately 100 children. Two full-time employees and several volunteers work in preparing the meals for all of these Community Programs.

The building includes a commercial kitchen and a meeting room that can seat approximately 60 persons. The meeting room is rented at a nominal cost to other local and state nonprofits, as well as other customers. These meetings often include related catering, prepared by staff in the kitchen. Staff also process foods to be distributed through the Food Pantry, including baked goods, packaged fresh vegetables and meats, soups, stews, and other prepared meals for use in the Community Programs. Another use of the kitchen is in processing bulk orders for home-based businesses that require the certification of a commercial kitchen, or special preparation of the foods used in the Farm-to-Table program - i.e., bulk carrots can be processed many different ways for the specific use of local restaurants. The kitchen also addresses economic needs of the community, in that the local labor market is heavily dependent on food service - cooks and servers - and training classes are held to mutually benefit individuals seeking skills and employers seeking trained and qualified help. A new walk-in cooler and other kitchen facility expansions were funded and completed in 2018. Program Service Revenues for 2018 included catering ($7,477); processed products sold ($53,770); and rentals of the community room and commercial kitchen ($21,698).
