Return Reference	Explanation
Monitoring procedures (Part I, line 2)	The Foundation implemented a two step process. First potential grantees apply through a verification process where the Foundation reviews the organizations details and ensures that they are in good standing and eligible to receive grants. Second, organizations interested in the grant fill out a grant application. The applications are assessed by a committee of three individuals that review the applications and make determinations based on eligibility and decide an award amount. A grantee is sent to the amount awarded and are required to fill out a report after 90 days in order to ensure that the funds were spent appropriately. Organizations that do not fill the required report or that expend grant funds outside the permitted scope are disqualified from future grants.
