Additional information	For students who are not able to visit in person, Colonial Williamsburg Teacher Institute created a new suite of innovation programs in 2018, providing teachers and school districts nationwide with resources and content to use in their classrooms. In addition to the weeklong programs-which have provided teacher professional development opportunities for educators for 30 years-the Foundation introduced two new three-day seminars. These agendas offer intensive focus on topics that we know are in high demand and serve as a more economical option. The first of the new in-depth seminars, Apprenticeships: STEM and Colonial Daily Life, explored the 18th-century application of scientific principles through the Historic Trades and introduced activities that wed history education with STEM teaching requirements. Participants left equipped to create interdisciplinary hands-on learning techniques that use historic trade skills as means of teaching STEM principles for any era. The other new seminar, Straight from the Sources: Women During the Time of the American Revolution, featured behind-the-scenes opportunities to learn about womens lives in colonial Virginia from a variety of perspectives. During this immersive experience, participants met with interpreters and visited the Special Collections of Colonial Williamsburgs John D. Rockefeller Jr. Library to work with original historical documents. This powerful combination helped the teachers hone their primary-source research skills and consider the best techniques for bringing such documents into the classroom-all while illuminating the significant contributions of Williamsburgs women, from the eve of the Revolution through the Restoration of Colonial Williamsburg in the 1920s. The Idea of America is a comprehensive digital American history and civics curriculum based on the notion that America is at heart a great debate among four sets of values-private wealth and commonwealth, unity and diversity, freedom and equality, and law and ethics. Many of the issues that American citizens faced as they built the Republic are linked to the issues we face today in national and global contexts. These issues, and historical events, can be framed within one or more of these sets of value tensions. Programs for secondary school students and the general public are designed to use American history to engage audiences today with their responsibilities as citizens.

COLLECTIONS, CONSERVATION, AND MUSEUMS	Colonial Williamsburg's wide-ranging collections, acquired over the past 90 years, provide the art, objects, artifacts, and buildings necessary to accurately recreate the environment of 18th-century Williamsburg. The archaeological and architectural collection include 500,000 whole archaeological artifacts from excavations in and around Williamsburg as well as 60 million fragments (probably the largest single archaeological holding relating to 18th-century America), more than 15,000 architectural fragments, and over 600 original and reconstructed buildings. The collections of British and American art and antiques include 72,000 objects, among them ceramics and glass, costumes, household accessories, furniture, musical instruments, numismatics, games and toys, kitchen equipment, paintings and drawings, prints and maps, scientific equipment, silver and base metals, textiles, tools and machines, and weapons. The Foundations holdings in southern furniture, American folk art, English silver and pewter, English porcelain, numismatics, tools, and several other categories are considered to be the most comprehensive in the nation. The Foundations extensive collections are researched by curators, archaeologists, and architectural historians and cared for by a staff of conservators and historic preservation professionals, all of whom oversee their display and care in the Historic Area and at the Art Museums. The Foundation is widely recognized for its expertise in colonial Virginia history and professionalism of its staff. The DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Museum features regularly changing thematic exhibitions drawn from Colonial Williamsburg's collections of British and American fine art and antiques. Highlights from its recent exhibitions include the following: English and American silver, British pottery and porcelain, paintings by Gilbert Stuart, Thomas Sully, John Wollaston, Charles Willson Peale, Godfrey Kneller, Peter Lely, and others, clothing and accessories from the late 17th through the mid-19th centuries, British and American needlework, weapons of the American Revolution, historic upholstery, coins and currency of early America, and examples of nearly every type of household furniture made and used in the American colonies. The Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Museum, the nations leading center for research, preservation, and exhibition of American folk art, is adjacent to the DeWitt Wallace Museum at the Public Hospital site. Through a series of regularly changing thematic exhibitions, Colonial Williamsburg displays its collection of nearly 7,000 examples of American folk art. This collection is designed to foster an appreciation for the aesthetic quality and educational value of American folk art and includes paintings, watercolors, pastels, calligraphic drawings, needlework, ceramics, musical instruments, three-dimensional carvings and sculptures, painted furniture, household ornaments, quilts, coverlets, and a wide array of other materials.

COLLECTIONS, CONSERVATION, AND MUSEUMS	Together, the DeWitt Wallace Decorative Arts Museum and the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Museum opened four new exhibitions in 2018: Navajo Weavings: Tradition & Trade, Folk Art Underfoot: American Hooked Rugs, Face Your Fears, and Upholstery CSI: Reading the Evidence. In support of exhibitions and historic area installations and programming, the Art Museums provide hundreds of school and family programs, lectures, tours, and musical and theatrical performances throughout the year in the galleries and Hennage Auditorium. Bassett Hall, a restored 18th-century residence near the Capitol, is exhibited as Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr. furnished it for their personal use in the 1930s and 1940s. Over 125 objects of American folk art collected by Mrs. Rockefeller are displayed there. The Colonial Revival gardens and grounds also reflect the Rockefellers' early 20th-century design. There, guests may view native Virginia flora and fauna in the woods beyond the house. The Foundation's pioneering and long-standing, archaeological research program is nationally and internationally recognized. Assembled over ninety years, its collections are at the core of historical archaeology in the United States and have long served as the national type collection for identifying and dating artifacts from North American sites of the colonial period. Active archaeological excavations are on-going. In 2018, excavations continued at the 1727 Robert Carter House as part of the joint Colonial Williamsburg/College of William & Mary Summer Field School. The Foundation also launched a five-year, grant-funded archaeological excavation and research program at the four-acre site of Custis Square. Once the property of John Custis IV, the site featured a substantial ca. 1717 residence, one of the most elaborate gardens in Colonial America, and the homes and workspaces of many enslaved men, women, and children. Additionally, imaginative, new hands-on archaeological programs for children are developed annually to meet public demand for more offerings on this popular topic. Architectural preservation and research are also among the institution's strengths. In 2018, groundbreaking research on the Robert Carter House continued and was expanded. Staff extracted new and surprising information on this remarkably well-preserved building and shared it throughout the summer months in regular public programs. At the same time, the preservation team oversaw complex masonry conservation projects at seven sites, lead repair and repaint efforts on more than sixty original and reconstructed buildings and made important advances in preventive conservation efforts.

In or next to the Historic Area stand 88 original structures including the Presidents House, the Brafferton, and the Wren Building at the College of William and Mary, the Courthouse on Market Square, Bruton Parish Church, the Powder Magazine, and Wetherburns Tavern. The George Wythe House, the Peyton Randolph House, the Thomas Everard House, the James Geddy House, and the St. George Tucker House are other surviving 18th-century structures. Fifty major buildings and over 450 smaller structures have been rebuilt on their original sites if which the Governors Palace, the Capitol, and the Public Hospital are prime examples. The reconstructed Raleigh Tavern, which opened in September 1932, was the first fruit of the archaeological, architectural, and historical research that informed their replication. In 2009, the Foundation opened Charltons Coffeehouse, a 1760s establishment that catered to Williamsburgs elite, rebuilt on its original foundations. James Andersons Blacksmith and Public Armoury site of 1776-1780, which includes a large blacksmith shop, forge, tinshop, kitchen, workshop, privy, and several storage buildings opened in 2012. In 2015, the Foundation opened the Market House, located next to the Magazine. The Market House holds auctions and sells goods that would have been for sale during colonial times. Ninety acres of gardens and greens fashioned to 18th-century forms showcase the buildings. In addition, the Historic Area is surrounded by 2,800 acres of greenbelt owned or used by the Foundation. In 2016, the Foundation instituted a new Military Outreach Program, including the Liberty Lounge, which has, to date, hosted more than 100,000 military guests and their families. New programming introduced in the Historic Area in 2017 includes ox cart rides and an expanded carriage program, candlemaking, a Native American encampment with program interpretation, two new Nation Builders a young Thomas Jefferson and a young Martha Washington, and the Colonial Musket Range where participants can fire two different reproduction 18th-century flintlock firearms commonly used during the Revolutionary War period and learn about the history of those firearms. A new interpretive site opened in 2017- Caesar Hopes Barber Shop. There guests meet John Caesar Barber Hope, a man who secured his freedom from slavery and eventually became a small business owner. Also new in 2017 was the debut of Patriots at Play, a new program located behind the Peyton Randolph House where our young guests learn about 18th-century life through hands-on activities. We also launched an ax-throwing range, providing another engaging site for older children and adults to learn about and experience this popular 18th-century pastime. Additionally, the Junior Apprentice Program introduces a new Historic Trades training program that provides
