development, including land purchase and building construction to enable ministry growth. Other efforts both capital expenditures and operational projects have partnered with the business community and local community leaders to provide leadership and business entrepreneurial training, support, funding for small business expansion and startup, and the continuing growth of local water systems. Increasing emphasis has been placed on women's business and personal development, as well as training for ministry leaders and their wives. Efforts are made to encourage sustainability and indigenously supported replication.

Revenue 71,391 Teleios Ministry engaged individuals to serve in the commercial workplace as agents of cultural transformation. Their work includes development of a workplace environment based upon the values and vision of the organization's leader. They also serve to minister as corporate chaplains to the employees, customers, vendors, and industry and geographical neighbors of the communities where the client organizations operate. Teleios Ministry is reimbursed for costs incurred by the business owners indirectly through Teleios Services.

During this year, those payments by Teleios Services were offset partially by a corporate contribution provided to assist with the work. Teleios Services is an organization owned by two of the directors of Teleios Ministry, and the company bills certain employers for the costs of providing chaplains in their workplace environment. Teleios Services receives per employee payments and pays Teleios Ministry an amount to reimburse the organization for actual costs.

The risk of loss in these transactions thereby remains with Teleios Services.
