Our work focuses on achieving good mental health outcomes, preventing trauma at a community level, addressing despair, and reducing substance misuse and addiction. Our approach emphasizes equity, community, and upstream prevention. We advance community-driven strategies to create environments that enable wellbeing and advocate for policies that support community-level prevention approaches. We address and prevent community trauma through naming injustice, healing, resilience, and community solutions for racial, gender and generational equity.

Form 990, Part III, Line 4c:

Safety Prevention Institute defines safety as the freedom from violence and the threat of violence that are necessary for people to thrive and live fulfilling lives. PIs work addresses multiple forms of violence (e.g., school, community, intimate partner, sexual assault, and child abuse and exploitation) and the relationships between them. Our approach to ensuring that all people experience safety across the lifespan emphasizes equity, community, and upstream prevention. We engage multiple sectors and coalitions to prevent violence through shifting norms, reducing risk factors, and promoting resilience factors. We advocate for upstream public health approaches to prevent violence as a viable alternative to criminal justice and remediation approaches.
