990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Part III, Line 3	Beginning March 16, when schools transitioned swiftly to a distance learning model due to COVID-19-related health concerns, YAMA followed suit by moving musical and leadership development offerings entirely online. Musical instruments and sheet music were distributed safely and immediately within the following weeks to ensure that students had proper tools. Using a variety of platforms, including video conferencing and YouTube, YAMA staff facilitated online lessons and managed an active video channel to ensure that students at all different levels of musical development and with varying access to Internet and technology would have opportunities to continue learning and stay connected to their learning community. Regular phone calls to check in with students and families, answer questions, and share resources also took place throughout the spring and summer. Additionally, staff facilitated weekly sessions in multiple topics for staff and student side-by-side learning, both to strengthen staff and student skills in important organizational areas (such as familiarization with more online tools for online teaching and facilitation skills for conducting effective group sessions online) as well as to promote continued connection within the learning community in a time of confusion and isolation. Relational and community-based offerings around music and leadership continued through the early summer, and the decision was made early in the summer to continue with -- and begin immediately preparing for -- an online-only fall term as well in order to ensure the safety of all YAMA students, staff, and families.
