Part I:

There is a significant net change in assets this year because the President decided to write off all unpaid salary from 2013-19 that had been accruing as a liability on the books. The board has approved this write off; the President will have considered all of the unpaid time of the organization's first years as a pro bono gift to the organization.

Some money was accrued as a liability in 2019-20 from a small PPP loan ($8,917) in addition to a SBA EIDL Loan, which was used to serve as a bridge in case of economic hardship in 2020/2021. Part of these loans are being reviewed for forgiveness and part that is unused will be returned and part that is used will be paid back over the coming year (EIDL: $73,900).

The organization is now in a positive cash position and positioning for growth.

Part III:

LEEP for Collaborative Impact is an important ecosystem-wide collaborative that links a local community of Egyptian social innovators to our global network of professionals, researchers, and policy-shapers committed to enabling systems change through evidence and collaboration. It is a space for knowledge exchange and sharing non-financial assets, for the community to lift itself up view itself as its own greatest asset. It is based on a model of citizen-led impact for sustainable development. By linking the Think Tank arm of RISE and tapping into collaborations with knowledge partners, it is also aligning toward national development strategy and identifying specific gaps in the ecosystem that can be intervened on or invested in to bridge disparities in development outcomes through social entrepreneurship and innovation. In FY2019-20, we piloted the LEEP community and digital platform in the education and environmental sustainability sectors; in 2021 we plan to open it up to healthcare, creative industries, and inclusive services and technologies as well. Our model has been showcased globally as a community-based, people-driven model for addressing the SDGs through people-driven, community-based, collaborative models for impact that are also data driven and scalable.
