990 Schedule O, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Part VI, Line 12c: Explanation of Monitoring and Enforcement of Conflicts	CONFLICT OF INTERESTIt is the Washburn University Foundation's (the Foundation) policy that actual conflicts of interest, and the appearance of a conflict of interest, be avoided. A conflict of interest arises in any situation which a trustee, officer, employee, or agent of the Foundation (collectively referred to as a "Foundation representative") is involved in an activity which could adversely affect his/her judgment with respect to the business of the Foundation or the University. If a conflict or potential conflict arises, the individual shall disclose, in writing, the existence of the conflict to the President of the Foundation prior to making, or participating in, any Foundation or University decision involving the situation in which the conflict of interest exists. Examples of situations in which a conflict of interest or the appearance of conflict of interest may be present, include, but are not limited to, the following situations: 1. Purchasing supplies or equipment from a vendor in which a Foundation representative has an ownership interest or where a family member of a Foundation representative might benefit from the transaction. 2. A directorship or active participation with a Foundation or an organization that transacts business with the Foundation. 3. Use of the information obtained from the Foundation for personal gain or benefit (e.g., acquiring property for resale to the Foundation). 4. Foundation representative acting as a consultant in regard to subjects where the representative gained information from the Foundation and that information is proprietary in nature. 5. Disclosing to outside parties plans and other information on the Foundation when such information is not readily available to the general public. Foundation representatives may find that, as a result of their activities on behalf of the Foundation, they may be offered personal gifts, benefits, or services. Generally, such items should not be accepted. However, there are situations where a personal relationship evolves from Foundation business, and it may be appropriate for Foundation representatives to accept certain items in particular circumstances. These include meals, refreshments or entertainment (as long as the amounts spent on such activities are reasonable); gifts related to events or occasions such as promotions, weddings, birthdays, etc. (as long as the amounts spent on such items are reasonable); awards or recognitions provided by civic, educational, professional or other similar groups or organizations; or token items. Whenever it might appear that receipt of such an item is in return for Foundation business, then the offer and/or tender of the gift should be disclosed in writing to the President of the Foundation. Development officers shall not act as a donor's legal, financial or tax advisor. While, as a part of the development process, development officers may have occasion to comment on tax and financial matters, it is incumbent upon the development officer
