990 Schedule F, Supplemental Information

Return Reference	Explanation
Pt I Line 2	Payments are subject to an agreement, memorandum of understanding or contract between Plan and the third party. The program is often broken into discrete projects and activities planned over time. Funding would be released in tranches with each tranche being conditional on satisfactory progress of the program activity and a satisfactory accounting for the funds already advanced. Local program staff will work with implementing partners throughout the project's life and finance department staff and operational management will visit to review progress periodically. Larger projects will be visited by senior operational and financial management from the country offices. Additionally, the country's own internal control teams may audit projects and Plan's Global Assurance team might also audit projects. Projects that are funded by grants received from third party donors will also be subject to scrutiny via reporting specified by the donor. Such reporting is typically quarterly and such projects may also be subject to external audit on behalf of the donor. Finally, Plan's external auditors review project spending as part of the annual financial statement audit process.
