Form 990, Part III - Additional Information

The program has approximately 180 students drawn from the local area. The program was conducted by 20 experienced music teachers and typically lasted for 30 lessons.

We continued our Music Discovery classes that are designed as early childhood music education program for 3 and 4-year old students to introduce them to the art of music and its basic concepts through interactive games and eurhythmics. We also started a plan to open two more classes for early childhood students: Music Together (0-2 years old) and Suzuki program for 4-year old string players.

We conducted orchestra program at Mary Ford Elementary school (Title I) at no cost to the students

We started partnership with Medical University of South Carolina's Arts in Healing program by offering four faculty and student performances in the hospital for patients and staff.

Conducted a benefit concert with students and faculty performing for an audience of 60.

Started Live at CAM initiative which consists of weekly broadcasts from the Academy and covers various topics related to Academy's activities, such as concerts, teaching, and arts engagement.

Theory and Composition Classes

All students are encouraged to attend one of these two theory classes: Mondays at 6:00pm: Theory and Ear Training. This class is a fun and interactive class suitable for beginners and intermediate level students of all instruments, including voice. No previous experience is necessary.

•Saturdays at 10:00am: Composition and Songwriting. This class is for the students to learn to utilize their musical knowledge and instrumental skills to produce their own compositions. To attend this class, note reading ability and basic theory knowledge are required.

In addition, students are also welcome to utilize the computer-based theory learning program, available in our lobby at all times. Students must first contact the office or their teacher to set up an account, and then participate in the self-guided program. Access to the computer is on a first-come, first-served basis.

Scholarship Program

The organization's scholarship program is designed for students who are seriously committed to the musical training. The scholarships are divided into merit based and financial need based awards. Students can apply for the program by filling out required paperwork, write a personal statement, and provide a letter of recommendation from a teacher. Applicants must auditionand/or pass interviewto be considered for an award. Upon the receipt of the scholarship, students sign the contract committing to certain hours of practice, regular lesson and concert attendance, and volunteer hours.

Terranova Piano Trio: this ensemble consists of the core violin, piano, and cello faculty members (Christian Zamora, Irina Pevzner, and Yun Hao Jiang, respectively)and functions as Academy's trademark of excellent professional performing. It serves two purposes: inspire students and deliver classical music to our community. Terranova performs public concerts and conducts outreach concerts in public schools to help local music teachers enhance their curriculum. The Eclipse Ensemble of CAM (formerly New Music Ensemble) is a group of Charleston Academy of Music faculty that specializes in a wide spectrum of classical music from the last 100 years, including conventional avant-garde art music, concert music from nontraditional sources (musical theatre, cabaret, historical and contemporary media), and music influenced by a variety of cultures and nationalities.It isinstrumental in diversifying Charleston's music culture.

Update for 2019

On February 23, Charleston Academy of Music hosted the Benefit Concert Gala in the style of Venetian Carnival Music Soiree at the Charleston Library Society Hall. Selected students of the Academy shared their talents on the stage and were interviewed by the MC Larry Barnfield also known for leading Piccolo Spoleto Rising Stars concert series. During the event, a silent auction was held and refreshments were served. The auction was distinguished by special masks that accompanied each item. Each mask was specific composer themed and was designed by Academy's students who competed in a contest for the best designs. The Fundraiser benefited the Academy's Scholarship Fund.

In March 2020, in response to the Covid-19 pandemic, the Academy implemented online instruction of group classes and individual lessons, as well as online concert streaming. While many scheduled events were cancelled, Academy's faculty and administration continued most of the usual operations and quickly adopted to the new working conditions.
